FINANCE BOARD PROBES TAX DODGERS

The Finance Commission to-day began an investigation of the Boston tax dodgers.

How influential men have been able to evade their personal taxes, and have their real estate taxation abated is to be probed by this body. Just how the matter has been handled by the Tax Department of the city will be gone into, thoroughly, it is promised.

Members of the Boston Real Estate and Auction Board appeared before the investigating body to-day and furnished the members with much information upon the subject. Those who testified were President Joseph B. Russell, Fred H. Viaux, Charles Francis Adams, 2d, William A. Gaston and J. M. Meredith.

To Make Report Later.

"There is nothing to be said about the matter," said Secretary Dowling after the conference. "The gentlemen who appeared were invited by the commission and others will probably be invited to apepar at future hearings. The commission is considering the general subject of taxation and the result of their research will be announced in a report that they will make later."

The Finance Commission probe is a direct result of recent exposures concerning the ability of Nathan Matthews, Laurence Minot, Francis N. Balch and other reformers to escape the payment of personal taxes and to have taxes on real estate abated.

Councilman Frank Goodwin of East Boston charged:

That land adjoining the Hotel Oxford, owned by ex-Mayor Nathan Matthews, was listed as a "park" on the assessors' books and escaped taxation. The land is now valued by the assessors at $20,000.

Valuation Reduced.

That the valuation of the Hotel Oxford, owned by Matthews, was reduced, while the valuation of neighboring property was unchanged.

That eighty parcels of real estate owned by Matthews were reduced in valuation from $1,147,400 to $900,000.

That Matthews held real estate as trustee for Francis N. Balch, now a member of the Finance Commission, and that Balch himself paid only a poll tax.

Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald charged that Laurence Minot, head of the Good Government Association, escaped taxes on many thousands dollars worth of personal property.

2 MILLION PEOPLE SEE GREAT HISTORIC PAGEANT IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Under a sky rapidly clearing before a brisk, cold wind, the great historical parade, the most spectacular land event of the Hudson-Fulton celebration, took place this afternoon. Along the five miles of the route there were crowded 2,000,000 spectators, jamming every inch of space. In the procession there were fifty-four floats on which the celebration artists have been working for months, and a great army of men, women and children representing scores of organizations.

The last of the divisions were ready early for one of the longest and most elaborate pageants ever witnessed in this country. Two million New Yorkers and visitors were out to witness the pageant. More bunting than ever spread for a similar occasion was shown in the decorations of the buildings along the line of march.

Nearly 20,000 men, women and children, most of them in costume, representing every national and patriotic society in the city posed as historic personages. The cost of the whole spectacle was $800,000.

The various organizations in each division were assigned formation places in the streets about the northern end of Central Park, and the veteran firemen, because of their years, were ordered to Sixty-fifth street, so that they would not have too long a march.

The line of march is from One Hundred and Tenth street, through Central Park west to Fifty-ninth street, east on Fifty-ninth street to Fifth avenue, and the length of the avenue, under the Washington Arch, to Third street, which has been chosen as the point for disbandment.

Every Foot of Space Taken.

WHITNEY AT ST. JOHNS; TO BACK UP COOK

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 28.—Harry Whitney, by whom Dr. Frederick A. Cook hopes to prove his Polar claims, arrived here to-day on the schooner Jeanie. Whitney is hurrying to New York, where he will meet Dr. Cook.

On board the Jeanie are innumerable trophies gathered by the young sportsman during his year's hunting in the Far North. Whitney is in good health. He expressed regret that he had been compelled to cache the belongings of Dr. Cook at Etah because Commander Peary would not allow them on the Roosevelt.

Whitney on landing declared that while he is reluctant to be drawn into any controversy between Cook and Peary, the truth compels him to admit that Cook informed him at Annotook last Spring that he had reached the Pole on April 21 the previous year. Cook described his journey, his return south, his failure to reach aNusen Island owing to westerly drift instead of easterly drift, and other matters as to his Winter sojourn in Jones Sound.

This statement was made before Pritchard at Annotook, while Murphy was at Etah, said Whitney. Whitney and Pritchard were requested by Cook not to tell Peary of this.

Cook came to Annotook with his two Eskimos, they having left the last sledge twetny miles behind. The next day it was recovered. On it were some scientific instruments, some clothes and their last vestige of food.

PEARY MAKES SIX CHARGES AGAINST COOK'S POLE STORY

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 28.—In the preliminary statement of his reasons for declaring that Dr. Frederick A. Cook is making false pretensions in his claim to having reached the North Pole, Commander Robert E. Peary stated six points. Summarized, they are: That Cook did not visit the Peary cairn at Cape Thomas Hubbard; that Cook did not have a sledge fit for the journey to the Pole; that Cook's snowshoes were not of the best kind; that he could not have carried an artificial horizon of glass; that Cook's claim to have travelled twenty-five and one-half degrees in one season was excessive, and that if Cook reached the Pole he would have kept with him the flag which he took there, instead of leaving it with Harry Whitney.

Hints at Whitney-Cook Plot.

Peary also intimated, without directly asserting it, that Cook and Whitney had schemed to publish Whitney's story at the time when the public was looking for Cook to produce his instruments and data necessary to prove his claim.

Asked what would be the point upon which he would mainly rely to discredit Cook, Peary replied: "One of my main points will be the strongest that has been advanced in Arctic explorations ever since the first great expedition was sent there. That is, the recognized custom of an explorer when reaching a point attained by an explorer previously to make a copy of the record left in a cairn there, put it in the place of the original and bring the original back with him. Dr. Cook did not do this. At Cape Thomas Hubbard I left a record in 1906. Dr. Cook declares that after he left Anatok he went to Cape Thomas Hubbard with a large party of Eskimos. Although he had men enough to make a thorough search he did not do so. He passed the cape twice in his trip to

DR. FLAGG TO WED WIDOW OF HUGH WHITNEY

Unusual comment has been called forth in Boston social circles by the announcement of the engagement of Dr. Elisha Flagg of No. 190 Commonwealth avenue, and Mrs. Hugh Whitney, the beautiful widow of the former prominent Boston clubman, whose tragic death by his own hand two years ago at their home in Beverly shocked the North Shore colony.

The engagement does not come as a surprise to those who have known of the close friendship that has existed between Dr. Flagg and Mrs. Whitney for many years. Dr. Flagg had been a visitor at the Whitney home during the life of Mr. Whitney, and as one of the oldest friends of the family was chosen as an usher at the funeral of the self-slain man.

That the young doctor was a favorite of Mrs. Whitney she did not attempt to disguise, and her coming marriage to him shows that this regard grew into a deeper feeling.

Worried Over Secret Trouble.

No satisfactory explanation of why Hugh Whitney should take his own life was ever given to the public. He apparently had everything in the world to live for. He was rich and had hosts of friends.

It was known that he had been brooding over a trouble of which he would not speak. His brother, Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton, went to Beverly one morning to talk with him on [illegible]. Whitney was found lifeless in his own room on his bed with a revolver grasped in his right hand. His wife, who had slept in another part of the house, had not heard the shot and did not know of her husband's act until his brother discovered it.

None of the members of the family would discuss the cause of the suicide, except to say that mental trouble had probably driven the man to the act.

Mrs. Whitney and her two children, Eleanor and Hugh, returned last week from an extended trip to Europe, and they are now in the White Mountains.

Noted Society Beauty.

Mrs. Whitney, who is a strikingly handsome woman, belongs to one of Boston's oldest and most aristocratic families, and was before her marriage the well-known society belle and beauty, Eleanor Shattuck. Her sister is Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, formerly Corrine Shattuck.

Dr. Flagg, who is the son of Mrs. George Flagg of Beacon street, is a Harvard '87 man and a member of the Somerset, Tennis and Racquet and numerous other smart clubs in town as well as the University and Harvard clubs in New York.

Mr. Whitney was one of the best-known members of the Somerset, the Tennis and Racquet and Myopia Hunt clubs, and was one of the wealthiest of the younger married men in town. He owned a handsome home at Beverly as well as a beautiful country place at Milton. He was in his thirty-eighth year and was the son of the late Henry A. Whitney of Milton. He graduated from Haravrd in '92 and was married in '97.

RAIN SPOILS RED SOX GAME

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Sept. 28.—The Red Sox and St. Louis Browns made a determined effort to work off a double-header this afternoon, but after a moment of sunshine the rain started in again and everything had to be called off.

The teams were in uniforms ready for business, but under the circumstances it would have been foolish for them to have started anything.

The Browns went back to their hotel and packed up. They leave to-night for New York where they wind up their Eastern trip.

To-morrow the eDtroit Tigers come to town and if they lose the pennant they will have to blame the Red Sox.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Jealous of Mme. Lina Cavalieri

Mme. Lina Cavalieri.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., are declaring to-day there may be a suit for divorce instituted before long, instead of the arrangements for merely a separation.

The Vanderbilt intimates say that Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is at present in New York, is and has been for a long while very angry over what she has termed his undisguised infatuation for Mlle. Cavalieri, the stage favorite.

Mr. Vanderbilt's friendship for Mlle. Cavalieri has been much talked about here in Paris, and, it is said, Newport has discussed it with great interest too.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, her friends say, has threatened a suit, and they will not be surprised to hear any day that she has already filed it.

William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., who is here, is said to be greatly upset over the unpleasant publicity that has recently come to his family through his son.

Not long ago, the friends say, he went to Mr. Vanderbilt, Jr., and spoke sharply to him about Mlle. Cavalieri, going even to the extent of declaring that he would make his son suffer financially if he persisted in keeping the family in the limelight.

Young Mr. Vanderbilt, however, declined, it is said, to make overtures to his wife for a reconciliation.

WRIGHT PLANS NEW FEAT IN HUDSON FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Wilbur Wright announced to-day that he would fly up the Hudson River and would perform "something out of the ordinary" in aerial navigation.

While Wright was making this statement in his aeroplane shed on Governor's Island, Glenn H. Curtiss, who was near by, declared that he was also ready to make a flight to-day. Curtiss seemed excited, and his actions indicated that he was anxious to make an ascension before Wright could do so, and thus beat the Dayton aviator to the honor of being the first to fly over New York.

"I shall fly, even though it is raining," said Curtiss, and that was more than Wright could say. The Curtiss aeroplane has waterproof material covering its structure, while Wright's has plain cloth, which would shrink if taken out in the rain and thus materially damage the aeroplane.

"The wind during the morning had been too puffy to admit of a successful flight. It seemed to be blowing from two or three directions. The conditions for flying in New York are not as favorable as I found them in Europe. Over there the atmospheric conditions were much better.

MORE RAIN? YES, 24 HOURS MORE OF IT!

Twenty-four hours more of rain!

The local forecaster of the Weather Bureau cannot see it any other way. The local forecast is for cloudy weather, occasional showers, with moderate to brisk easterly to southerly winds.

The present storm is now general along the Atlantic coast.

Sticky weather? Well, somewhat. There was just 100 per cent. of water in the air at 8 this morning—that means a saturated solution; any more moisture meant rain.

The barometer was away down in the lake regions to-day. This portends a storm, and the forecaster said that the storm cooking up there is likely to move eastward and to meet the storm here, making heavy showers to-morrow.

The weather over the country is too cool for this time of year. The low point here to-day was 60. Rain has fallen every day since September 23, with the exception of Saturday. To-day for hours a heavy fog hung over sea and shore, making navigation difficult and dangerous.

THE WEATHER.

Rain to-day, followed by clearing in the afternoon or night. Wednesday, fair. Light northerly winds.

Sun rises, 5:38 a. m.; sets, 5:32 p. m. High tide, 10 a. m., 10:30 p. m. Moon sets, 4:07 a. m.

COUNSEL FOR CURLEY PROBE NOT LEGAL?

It was stated at City Hall to-day that the order passed by the aldermen yesterday authorizing the employment of special counsel, stenographers, etc., by the aldermanic committee investigating the charges made by Alderman Curley against prominent politicians, was illegal and a violation of section 8 of the new city charter.

Section 8 of the new city charter incorporates section 12, of chapter 266, of the acts of 1885 and reads as follows: "Neither the city council, nor any member or committee, officer, or employe thereof, shall, except as otherwise provided in this act, directly or indirectly on behalf of the city or the county of Suffolk take part in the employment of labor, the making of contracts, the puchase of materials, supplies or real estate."

WOODMAN GIVES UP; PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Andrew W. Woodman of the Roebling Construction Company, who was indicted in August of last year on the charge of conspiring to suppress fair competition in furnishing fire-proofing for buildings, to-day surrendered himself, pleaded not guilty to the indictment and furnished cash bail of $2,000 before Judge Fessenden in the Superior Criminal Court. Woodman was indicted jointly with George P. Bullard of the Eastern Expanded Metal Company. The indictment was the outgrowth by an investigation by the former Finance Commission.

CLYDE FITCH'S BODY ARRIVES

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Mrs. William G. Fitch arrived to-day from Europe on the North German Lloyd liner Grosse Kurfuerst. On the same ship was the body of her son, Clyde Fitch, the playwright, who died of appendicitis on September 4 at Chalons-sur-Marne, France. The body was taken to the Church of the Ascension, where the funeral will be held Friday.

HILL OPENS STEEL CONSPIRACY CASES

District Attorney Hill this afternoon opened the case of the Government against the thirty-two defendants in the so-called Boston agreement cases. In his opening address to the jury he promised to prove that the defendants formed a combination to unreasonably restrain trade by fixing prices and that this combination tended to defraud the city of Boston. He said in part:

"In this case there are a great many defendants which results in a great many lawyers which I trust will not prejudice you against either the government or the defendant.

"The defendants in this case are thirty-two in number, of which thirteen are corporations and nineteen individuals. A corporation is an imaginarty person with the power of a person and can be guilty of a crime the same as you or I.

Steel a Necessity.

"Some of the names read in the indictment are officers, some are agents, while others are doing business for themselves. All were in the business of installing structural steel. We shall show you that structural steel is a necessary thing in the building of all large structures to-day. Of course that does not mean that it is absolutely necessary. It is possible to build a building, as this court house, of brick, but as a practical matter steel is a necessity to a modern city as much as lumber is. That we will show you by architects and engineers.

"The first count of this indictment is a general charge that these defendants formed a combination to unreasonably restrain trade by fixing and maintaining certain prices. The second count charges that they combined to defraud by agreeing on certain prices that they should give and yet give the appearance of being independent bids when all the time they each knew what the bid of the other was.

"The third count charges that they had a practically monopoly as the result of this agreement to fix and maintain prices. The defendants were members of an organization which they called the 'Boston Agreement.' That was the outgrowth of a similar organization so that this was not the first time that they got together.

Central Office Kept Up.

"Under the 'Boston Agreement' a central office was maintained in which an employe called a commissioner was employed who was paid by all the defendants. I think $50 a year was contributed by each of the defendants for the purpose of running this central office. A treasurer employed the commissioner, also employed stenographers and any others that he required. Whenever any concern which was a member of the 'Boston Agreement' was going to bid on a job, that concern notified the commissioner on a card used for that purpose. Those cards, one of which I hold in my hand, and which I will later offer as evidence, shows the city or town where the work was to be done, gives the name of th eowner, also the name of the architect under whom the work is to be done and the date when the bids were to be closed. It also gives a description of the work to be done.

MONAHAN SUES M'NAMEE FOR $5,000 CLAIM

Ex-Senator George F. Monahan of Charlestown to-day filed in the Superior Civil Court an attachment for $5,000 in a suit for breach of contract against ex-Mayor John H. McNamee of Cambridge. Monahan in speaking of his suit against McNamee, said:

"This suit of mine will bring home to the minds of the people of Boston and Cambridge some startling facts in connection with the political career of John H. McNamee, who was formerly mayor of Cambridge, but who now lives at No. 16 Clarkwoodo street, Dorchester.

"To give full details of my dealings with Mr. McNamee would take too much time, but I will say this. On June 19, 1905, I advanced $3,250 to Daniel Coakley, Mr. McNamee's lawyer. McNamee was interested in the work of registration and naturalization in Cambridge, ostensibly to make Cambridge a Democratic stronghold.

"There were a number of persons illegally naturalized and registered that year and the matter cam up in the courts. McNamee has promised many times to pay me back, the money I loaned him. I have requested him to keep his promise a number of times, but to no avail. He pleaded poverty on all occasions. Now I mean to get it.

"My attorney, Francis Carney, has all the data pertaining to the affair in his possession. We have attached Mr. McNamee's factories in Hyde Park, the total amount being $5,000. The old for will fly and deception and double dealings in the political arena will have the limelight of publicity flung on the canvass of righteousness with a view to giving ambitious young men a square deal in the future."

FLORETTA WHALEY IS HEIR TO $10,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Floretta Whaley, the pretty schoolgirl who eloped with the Rev. Jere Knode Cooke from Hempstead, L. I., to-day fell heir to $10,000 from an uncle, Anthony Whaley, whose will was filed at Mineola. The money, however, will not go to the girl until the death of her aunt, Anthony Whaley's wife.

$1,000,000 LOSS IN ITALIAN FLOOD

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 28.—Floods following heavy rainfall have caused damage in the province of Liguria, more particularly around Verraze, estimated at about $1,000,000. More than twenty persons have been fatally or seriously injured.

NEW SUIT DIRECTED AT MRS. EDDY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 28.—That some new form of litigation directed at Mrs. Mary G. Baker Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, is contemplated, was admitted to-day by Lawyer John W. Kelly of Portsmouth, who was formerly associated with former Senator W. E. Chandler in the recent suit brought by "her best friends." Seen at the Eagle Hotel Mr. Kelly was asked if a new suit would be brought.

"Yes," he replied.

But he would not give an idea of the nature of the suit nor would he tell when action would be started. The suit, it is understood, will be in the nature of an attempt to prevent the property of Mrs. Eddy from going to others than her relatives.

BRYAN EXPLAINS FIGHT ON BAILEY

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 28.—W. J. Bryan returned to Texas to-day and explained in a public address his position in the controversy with Senator Bailey over the tax on raw materials. Mr. Bryan censured the Democratic members of Congress for their position in the tariff debate and declared they lost to the Democratic party the greatest opportunity for a signal victory that it had had in years. Mr. Bryan attacked protection on wool. He declared the doctrine of a tax on raw materials was a sectional problem that would disrupt the Democratic party.

TO MAKE PLANS FOR C. T. A. CONVENTION

The semi-annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the archdiocese of Boston will be held in the music room of Boston College, Sunday afternoon, October 10. Committees will be appointed to direct the work of preparation for the fortieth annual session of the national body, to be held in Boston next August. President John T. Shea will preside.

LAST OF ORIGINAL SHIP JOINERS DEAD

Samuel Clark, 92 years old, the last of the old original shipjoiners of Medford, who worked in the yards on the Mystic River when shipbuilding was the big industry there, is dead after a brief illness. Mr. Clark had lived at 150 Riverside avenue, parallel with the banks of the river, for some seventy-five years.

DIRE PERIL TO EARTH! PLANETS PLOT TO PULL GLOBE OUT OF SHAPE

MESSINA, Sept. 28.—Frank Alford Perret of Brooklyn, N. Y., honorary assistant director of the Royal Observatory of Mount Vesuvius, the first man to forecast seismic disturbances and the only man to foretell the Messina disaster, believes that within the next three days the earth may be pulled out of shape by the terrific power of the sun and planets in unusual conjunction, and that as one result Sicily again will be the scene of earth shocks.

Mr. Perret bases this latest forecast upon astronomical conditions, his guide in all his prior predictions, and so accurate in the past have been his readings of the positions of the planets as exerting great strains upon the earth, that his predictions are now regarded as scientifically accurate.

Great Planetary Forces.

In the next three days the positions of the sun, moon, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter will be such as to exert the most tremendous strain of direct attraction upon the earth produce a strong gravitational distortion of the earth's form; so much so as to change the earth from a sphere to an ellipse. It is such a severe strain as this that causes the major seismic disturbances, according to Mr. Perret.

"Wednesday, Sept. 29, is the date most favorable for earthquakes or eruptions," said Mr. Perret. "At that time the sun, earth and moon are in line with each other, and the moon also is at its nearest approach to the earth. This combination occurs frequently, tending to produce gravitational distortion of the earth's form, namely, to change the earth from a sphere to an eclipse. This extra strain often acts upon the weak spots in the earth's crust, causing them to give way and thus producing earthquakes or volcanic eruptions.

"On Wednesday it happens that the planet Mars also is nearest to the earth and also almost directly in line with the earth, sun and moon, while Saturn is not far from the same line. Jupiter, although far on the other side of the sun, is also in a line with the earth. It is true that the effect of these planets is very much less than that of the sun and the moon, but when their effect is added the strain will be greater than usual. Thus, I consider that Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be very dangerous. Possibly nothing very special will occur, but this will simply mean that the earth has resisted the danger that nevertheless existed."

Predicted Messina Quake.

Mr. Perret is assistant to the famous Professor Mattenci, in charge of the observatory on Mount Vesuvius, and was one of two men to remain with Professor Mattenci during the terrible volcanic eruptions of 1906. He was highly honored by the King of Italy for his bravery and generously praised by Mattenci. His forecasts of seismic disturbances have won the recognition of scientists and especially astronomers. There is no doubt that he was the only person to predict the Messina disaster, and if his advice had received more heed, many lives would have been saved.

Local Earthquake Shocks.

With the cabled forecast of Mr. Perret, news reached New York yesterday of earth shocks in southeastern Missouri, southern and central Illinois and western Kentucky and Indiana. They occurred early yesterday, but were so slight as to do little damage.

The presence of a great sun spot has been held responsible for the seismic disturbances in this section of the country, usually free from earthquakes, and also for the presence of the electrical aurora or great electrical wave which swept over the northern part of the Western Hemisphere two days ago.

Existence of such unusual conditions makes the statement of Mr. Perret of the greatest interest, and scientists throughout the country will watch closely to see if his forecast is in any way justified.

GIBLIN MAKES WAR ON BRAND

Denouncing Chairman Brand of the Board of Aldermen as a presiding officer who is arbitrary and unfair, Alderman Thomas J. Giblin filed a notice with City Clerk Priest to-day that he would move reconsideration of the vote whereby the board refused to confirm Edward G. Richardson and Alonzo F. Andrews as principal assessors, at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

At yesterday's meeting after confirmation of the two appointees of Mayor Hibbard was refused, Alderman Giblin made a motion to reconsider the vote and was ruled out of order by Chairman Brand.

"I am satisfied that I was right in this matter," said Alderman Giblin in commenting upon the matter to-day, "and I do not propose to be squelched by the arbitrary ruling of the chairman. It is not the first time he has ignored parliamentary procedure in making rulings to suit himself, and I propose to show that he is not infallible."

GORDON FINED IN DEATH CASE

Morris Gordon, a contractor of Chelsea, who was indicted on sixteen counts of manslaughter last November, to-day pleaded guilty before Judge Fessenden in the Superior Criminal Court. He was ordered to pay a fine of $500 on the first count, while the other fifteen were placed on file.

Gordon and Morris Seegal of Chelsea were reconstructing a building, and caused holes to be cut in the walls of the building, weakening the structure so that it collapsed and killed eight workingmen on August 29, 1908.

Both were indicted for manslaughter. In recommending this disposition of the case District Attorney Hill declared that he did not believe the defendants morally so guilty that a jail sentence is necessary.

What's the Matter with the World?

Within the past week or ten days Nature has been kicking up an alarming rumpus all along the line. Here are some of the things that have happened:

Floods and storms in the Gulf and Southern Atlantic, costing scores of lives and millions in property.

Aurora borealis of unusual brilliancy, observed all around the earth.

Electrical storm playing havoc with telegraph and cable everywhere.

Discovery by Marquette University astronomer of 300,000-mile sun spot.

Earthquakes in western United States and southern Europe, and renewed activity of Vesuvius.

Approach of Halley's comet and neighborly attitude of the planet Mars.

Seven days of rain right here in Boston.

BANDIT SHOOTS THREE FOR $47

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—A masked desperado shot one man to death and seriously wounded two others to get $47 to-day in a saloon at York road and Lycoming street.

The dead man is James Quinn, aged twenty-three years, son of the owner of the saloon. The wounded men were standing at the bar when the bandit entered. The masked man drew a revolver and commanded the three men to produce all the money and jewelry they had.

"You're not moving fast enough," he exclaimed, snapping the trigger, and young Quinn fell dead, shot through the abdomen.

"Get a move on," exclaimed the man as Saylor and Cassidy cowered.

Two more shots rang out and both men fell to the floor.

The bandit replaced his revolver, stooped over the prostrate bodies and rifled the pockets. Then he removed his mask and sauntered into the street.

MEAN HORSE THIEF JOKES ERADICATORS

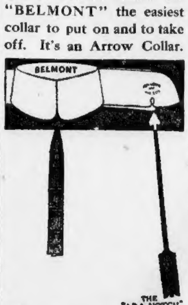

CAHOKIA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Elated at its having driven all the horse thieves out of the community, the Horse Thief Detective Association held a celebration.

President Vital Binnett rode his favorite horse. During festivities a thief stole it and he had to walk home.

BIG REVIVAL HERE NOV. 1

Revival meetings planned by the New England Evangelical Alliance will be inaugurated in Boston on November 1. The meetings will be conducted on lines similar to the Chapman-Alexander meeting last Winter, but only inasmuch as they will be held simultaneously.

The real object of the meetings will differ from the Chapman-Alexander meetings. The meetings last Winter were for the purpose of reaching the unconverted; the proposed meetings will have as an object to awaken the new spirit among those already members of churches. The main idea is to bring the spirit which Dr. Chapman awakened in Boston into the existing agencies.

The Rev. Dr. George F. Pentecost will be the leader of the band who will carry on the evangelical work. The Rev. Herbert A. Manchester of East Boston will be chairman of the committee of arrangements and the Rev. Dr. Duncan A. McPhee is secretary. Everett E. Naftzgar, who was with the Chapman-Alexander campaign, will be one of the soloists and choir leader.

WINDOW CUTTERS WIN BIG STRIKE

PITTSBURG, Sept. 28.—The American Window Glass Company has signed a wage scale with the Window Glass Cutters and Flatteners' Protective Association of America by which the company agrees to pay an eight per cent. advance in wages, making the wages the same as those paid in the hand-blowing factories. Under this settlement practically all the old employes will return to work at once, ending the strike which has lasted three weeks.

GOES SURETY FOR MAN HE ARRESTED

Special Officer Mitchell of the Lagrange street police station created a sensation in the first session of the Superior Criminal Court when he went surety to the extent of $1,000 for Charles A. Thompson, whom he arrested August 25 for larceny, and who pleaded guilty to the charge.

Thompson was arrested by the officer on the charge of larceny of cloaks and suits valued at $150 from the show case of a store on Summer street.

LETTER BOX FIRE DRAWS CROWD

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Many men and women on their way to the theatre and several policemen were balked in their efforts to extinguish a fire in a letter box at South Ninth street and Bedford avenue, Williamsburg. After several had been drenched, a man with a pitcher of water flooded the receptacle and kept fifty letters from being entirely consumed. Nobody knows how the fire started.

LEAVES FUNDS TO THREE CHARITIES

The Home of the Destitute Catholic Children, the Working Boys' Home and the Little Sisters of the Poor on Dudley street are each given $1,000 by the will of William A. Clasby, filed for probate. The pastor of St. Joseph's Church on Circuit street, Roxbury, is given $1,000 to be used for some improvements, ornament or statue in the church in memory of the testator's mother.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Former Hostess of the King Bankrupt.

LONDON—Society has been surprised and shocked to learn that the King's friend, Mrs. Hartmann, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. She is the widow of a wealthy German manufacturer who made a fortune out of the famous turkey red dye. Many years ago she was a famous London hostess, whose dinners gave her a great reputation. When the royal residence at White Lodge, Richmond Park, was vacated by the Duke and Duchess of Teck in 1901 the King lent it to Mrs. Hartmann, with whom he had long been friendly. Indeed, she was one of the few people below royal rank with whom Edward felt able to indulge in personal friendship on equal terms. She frequently visited King Edward and Queen Alexandra at Sandringham and they were often her guests at select dinners in London. Mrs. Hartmann, who is over seventy years old, sets forth that her unsecured liabilities are $216,980, secured liabilities $66,920 and assets $71,565.

"Suffragettes Martyrs."

LONDON—Sympathizers with the militant suffragettes have been terribly shocked over the forcible feeding of the prisoners at Birmingham who have refused to take food, and a lively agitation has been begun in behalf of the pump-fed women. The Laborites and Socialists, led by Keir Hardie, denounced the "horrible outrage" in the House of Commons, representing the suffragettes as martyred victims of barbarism. Mr. Gladstone, the Secretary for Home Affairs, was absent, but Mr. Masterman, the parliamentary secretary to the local government board, stated that he sanctioned the ordinary treatment in such cases, it being the duty of those in charge of prisoners to prevent them from committing the felony of suicide.

French Dirigible Fund.

PARIS—Subscriptions to the fund proposed by Le Temps for supporting military aerostatics in memory of the dead officers of the ill-fated La Republique totalled $5,100 the first day. The amount received will be devoted to providing for the victims' families first and the residue will be divided almost equally, one part to replace the wrecked dirigible and the other to supply the army with an aeroplane, as it is not doubted that aeroplanes will be used with dirigibles for reconnoitring work while awaiting their employment as engines of war.

Straus Aids Stricken City.

BERLIN—Cassel, one of the favorite cities of the German Emperor, which has been in the grip of an epidemic of typhoid fever, has accepted the assistance of Nathan Straus in the fight against the disease. Upon the outbreak of the epidemic Mr. Straus, who was then at Carlsbad, telegraphed to Mayor Mueller of Cassel, offering to send from Heidelberg 200 home pasteurizers, so that the people of Cassel might protect themselves from infected milk. Mayor Mueller telegraphed to Mr. Straus, accepting his offer.

Harvard Altar Dedicated.

LONDON—The Bishop of Southwark dedicated the altar in the Harvard Memorial Chapel, St. Saviour's Church, Southwark, yesterday. The chapel, formerly known as St. John's, was restored recently at a cost of $10,000, raised by subscription in memory of John Harvard. The founder of Harvard University came from Southwark.

Contraband Opium Trade.

HONOLULU—The scarcity and high price of smoking opium have led to a great increase in the smuggling of the drug from Japan. Customs officers here have had their suspicions aroused recently by the great increase in the number of Japanese sampans in these waters. These swift vessels are said to be used in the contraband opium trade.

Italian Banker Aids Aldrich.

ROME—Signor Canoval, secretary of the Bank of Italy, who is now in Paris, telegraphs from that city that he has met Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of the Monetary Commission, to whom he explained in detail the Italian banking system. Signor Canoval says that he has accepted an offer to write a paper on the subject for the commission.

Mrs. Chauncey Depew Hurt.

PARIS—Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew met with a painful accident on Saturday while riding in an automobile on the Champs Elysees. A public taxicab collided with her automobile, and Mrs. Depew was cut about the forehead by broken glass.

CLEVER WHIP BRIDE TO-DAY OF TROOPER

Miss Bettina Timayenis, daughter of B. B. Timayenis, a wealthy Boston business man, and niece of Demosthenes Timayenis, Greek Consul in Boston, to-day became the bride of John Dickson Clarke, one of the most dashing and popular members of the famous Roxbury Horse Guards.

The ceremony which joined the young couple was performed by the Rev. Edward Kenney in the rectory of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester. None but the immediate members of the families of bride and groom were present.

Miss Margaret Clarke, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. James A. Clarke, a brother, was the best man. The ceremony was brief and simple.

In a large touring car the wedding party was driven from the bride's home at No. 79 Tonowanda street, Dorchester, to the rectory, where the officiating clergyman was awaiting them. After the ceremony the party was whirled back to the home of the bride, where a reception was tendered them.

This evening a wedding supper is given at the Hotel Touraine. The couple will then leave for a two-weeks' tour of the South. They will live at No. 19 Tonewanda street.

Mr. Clark and his bride met under the most romantic of circumstances. She is an experienced and devoted horseback rider, while the young trooper rides like a Centaur. They met in the Fenway not three months ago, were introduced by mutual friends and rode right into each other's esteem.

BOSTON OFFER FOR PLANT FAVORED

WORCESTER, Sept. 28.—The offer of $300 cash on delivery for stock in the Worcester Electric Light Company is not proving a strong temptation to the stockholders and there are rumors that the offer will be increased.

The directors have issued a statement to stockholders advising them to hang on to their stock, but if events shape themselves so that they feel they desire to dispose of their holdings, they recommend that it go to Stone & Webster, of Boston, who offer $300 per share.

SALARY TOO HIGH FOR THIS PASTOR

MARKSBORO, N. J., Sept. 28.—The Newton Presbytery in session at Washington to-day will have to decide whether or not the Rev. F. A. Lott of Newport shall be allowed to accept the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church here. The only objection is that he does not ask for enough money. The Presbytery has made a rule not to appoint a pastor at a salary less than $800 a year, but Mr. Lott is willing to accept $700.

AIRSHIPS REFUSE TO LEAVE GROUND

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—The speed competition, which began as the opening event of aviation week, were disappointing in its results. Only LeBlanc and Farman succeeded in getting into the air; the others were unable to rise from the sandy ground. LeBlanc in a Bleriot machine, made eight circuits of the course, which measures 1.55 miles, in sixteen minutes and thirty seconds. Farman covered the same distance in twenty-one minutes and forty-five seconds.

KATAHDIN TO BE USED AS TARGET

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 28.—The ram Katahdin, from which so much was expected as a weapon of war, is about to come to an ignominious end. The Katahdin is to be towed from the League Island navy yard at Philadelphia to Hampton Roads. Here all her machinery and useful material will be removed and then her hull will be used as a target for Uncle Sam's battleships.

JURY BREAKS WILL ON SISTER'S PLEA

Mrs. Lillian M. Nelson of No. 30 Mellen street, Dorchester, loses a legacy said to amount to about $12,000, by the verdict of a jury in the Supreme Judicial Court. The jury decided against the will of Anna L. Shaw, by which Mrs. Nelson was to receive the residue of an estate valued at about $17,000, with the understanding that Mrs. Nelson should care for an aged sister of Miss Shaw. The will was contested by Maria S. Eayres, a sister of the testatrix.

JUDGE'S BABY HAS NOTABLE RECORD

ATLANTA, Sept. 28.—For the thirteenth time Judge R. B. Russell of the Court of Appeals of Georgia, and one of the strongest men politically in Georgia, is a father.

It is a baby boy with a proud record, for he is the thirteenth child of a thirteenth child on his mother's side, and the seventh son of a seventh son on the side of his father.

'DEAH OLD 11' IS ALL UPSET BY POLITICS

"Deah old Ward 11" is in the throes of a malady which threatens to completely upset the social season. The ailment gives its victims an abhorrence of drawing room parties and an uncontrollable desire to ring doorbells and pass out handbills.

Our very best physicians have diagnosed the disease as "politicomania." It first showed itself when George Holden Tinkham and Myron Killingsworth Pierce combatted for senatorial honors. The Tinkham-Pierce affair is all over now, but the epidemic is here to stay.

Hard Times for Martin.

The Back Bay debutantes are on the verge of prostration. The Harold Montgomerys and the Waldo Wentworths have positively declined to attend any of the coming social functions. "Too busy with politics" is their answer.

Exciting times are coming for the Martin Lomasneys and Jim Donovans of the Back Bay. For instance, there's to be a big Ward 11 rally to-morrow at 5 p. m. at the City Club in the interests of Plan Two. Papers will be read to show that the supporters of Plan One have no family trees. Oh, yes—and tea will be served. The "fellows" must have something to keep their nerves in trim for the political fights.

Everybody of any standing in Ward 11 has been put on some committee or other for the City Club rally. There will be a committee on decorating the hall. Its members held an exciting meeting to-day, at which the relative decorative merits of pink and blue ribbons were discussed.

Cigarette Committee Busy.

Then there are committees on refreshments, reception, cigars, cigarettes (a separate committee for each), automobiles and—mercy me—ever so many other things that are needed in political campaigns.

It leaked out to-day that some one intends to spring a plan at to-morrow's gathering to have certain of the fellows move into Wards 6, 8, 9, 13, 17 and 19 and attempt to wrest the ward control away from the bosses. A red hot debate is due when this topic is discussed.

CUNARDER SAXONIA MAKING RECORD TRIP

The Cunarder Saxonia is probably making her record trip from Queenstown, for unless she hits a fog bank off the coast she will dock at noon to-morrow. She is bringing 1,700 passengers of all classes.

Among the well known Bostonians who are saloon passengers are Robert Treat Paine, Jr., Mrs. Paine and their two children, Mr. and Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Mr. and Mrs. William Sheafe, Mrs. R. H. Soule, Mrs. Susan Ranlet, Miss Ethel Clark Ranlet, Charles C. Torrey, W. F. Mattingley, Miss Ethel Farnsworth and Judge Elijah George of the Suffolk Probate Court.

"SAID I WOULD GO INTO CONSUMPTION"

Mrs. Olm Had This Warning from Her Physician
She and Her Children Made Healthy by Father John's Medicine.

"Last spring I contracted a cold and our family doctor claimed I had lung trouble and said that unless I took care of myself and got my lungs healed, I would go into consumption. He gave me a number of tonics, but they didn't seem to help.

"I resolved to try Father John's Medicine and I could see an improvement after the first bottle and the improvement has continued. I have taken Father John's Medicine myself since last spring and have used it for a family medicine when my four children had whooping cough, and it helped them wonderfully. My twin babies got so used to it that I give it to them right along as a tonic. When they see the bottle, they start to shout until they have had their share.

"I am very thankful for Father John's Medicine as it has improved us all, and made us healthy and happy. I shall continue to use it in my family for all ills." (Signed) Mrs. Henry Olm, 101 North Ninth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Remember that Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine. Contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs. It is a physician's prescription and has been in use 50 years.

RUSSELL IS IDENTIFIED BY SCHOOL CHUM

James P. Keating of New York, who went to school in Melrose thirty years ago with Daniel Blake Russell, who is fighting for his share of the estate of $500,000 left by his father, Daniel Russell of Melrose, was the first witness to-day in the hearing of the will contest before Judge Lawton in the Probate Court, East Cambridge. Before Keating took the stand, Nelson Sheldon, Daniel Blake Russell's counsel, asked the court to issue a capias warrant for Miss Hannah Lynde, a witness who has failed to answer the court's subpoena.

William Russell, the brother who is fighting Daniel Blake Russell's claims on the ground that he is an impostor, was still absent from the hearing to-day. He has not appeared since the case began.

Has Old Autograph.

Keating testified that he knew Daniel Blake Russell in Melrose, where they were boys together.

"We went to school together," said Mr. Keating. "I delivered newspapers at his house. He wrote his name in my autograph album." The album was introduced in evidence, and then counsel for Mr. Russell said to the contestant: "Stand up, Mr. Russell, please." He stood up and faced the witness. The lawyer then asked Mr. Keating:

"Is this the Daniel Blake Russell whom you knew in your schoolboy days in Melrose?"

"It is," replied the witness.

"When Mr. Russell sent for me this month to come over to see him, I met him at the Parker House," continued Mr. Keating. "I did not know him at first. Then I asked him some questions which I know only Daniel Blake Russell could answer.

"He answered them, telling me the names of seven or eight boys who went to school with us, the names of several girls who were in our room at school, some teachers' names, and how James Gately was killed by the railroad at Melrose. I was convinced.

Sweetheart to Testify.

"Mr. Russell told me of his return to Melrose, how he went to see his brother, William Russell, and entering the room had said: 'Don't you know me, Willie?' Mr. Russell told me that his brother hung his head, and that he was prevented by those about his brother to ask him anything more."

Miss Hattie Keith, the boyhood sweetheart of Daniel Blake Russell, will take the stand late to-day, for Mr. Russell. She is expected to be one of the strongest witnesses to prove his identity.

Daniel Russell of Melrose left $500,000. He had two sons, Daniel Blake Russell and William Russell. Daniel Blake Russell had left home when a boy. By the terms of the will the fortune went entire to William, half of which he was to give over to his brother, Daniel Russell, should he ever return.

RUN OVER BY OWN WAGON.

While boarding a milk wagon on Prospect street, Cambridge, early to-day, Arthur Richardson, aged sixteen, slipped on the step and fell. The front wheel passed over his left leg and fractured it. He was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

TAFT TIRING; CUTTING PART OF PROGRAM

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 28.—The grueling work to which President Taft has been subjected during the past few days is beginning to tell on him. Sunday at Ogden he was compelled to cut the program in half, as he was tired out by the Salt Lake City round of entertainments, and yesterday at Helena, the program was split in two.

In a large measure these cuts are due to the work of the local committees, who insert new stunts for the President without consulting his aides. Over at Montrose last Thursday, for example, he was called upon to make five speeches in a town of less than 3,000 inhabitants, whereas he spoke once in such places as Denver and Minneapolis.

The President's good nature is such that he allows himself frequently to be imposed upon in this way. To oblige one friend or another he extends his drives, visits a section where he was not scheduled to appear and makes speeches, and in that way uses up all of his reserve energy. Already during this trip he has made seventy-five speeches, and he has not yet completed the second week of an eight-week journey. Accordingly, to save the President's strength, it has been determined that the President shall conform to the program. No more favors will be granted.

Taft's Ankle Sprained.

It is a fact also that the President has been suffering from a sprained tendon in his foot that has caused him great discomfort especially when standing up to make a speech. This injury is being treated by Dr. Richardson and is rapidly mending.

The President's limp was perceptible yesterday, especially when he was walking over the uneven floor of the copper mine he visited in Butte. Just as the train left there yesterday it was said that the President had gone up twenty-five per cent. in the estimation of the people by going down in the mine. It had been predicted that he would not have the nerve to go down in the shaft. The President has been looked upon out in this section as more or less of a mollycoddle, because Roosevelt was the type of President they knew best out here. They compared Roosevelt's strenuous exercises with Taft's golf playing to the latter's disadvantage.

The President told his Butte audience when he was presented with the copper golf stick that he did not play golf all the time, but that he was forced to resort to such exercise from time to time to keep from getting fatter.

To Work on Message.

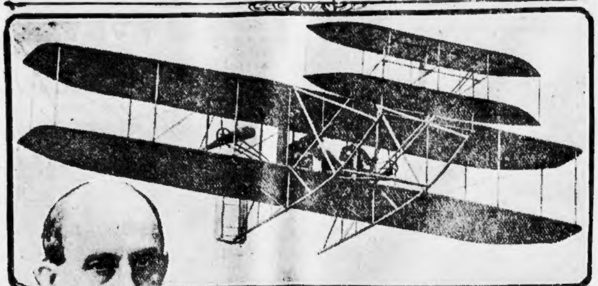

The President will begin active work on his message to Congress during the latter part of this trip. One of the main objects of the trip was to try out through speeches the different policies he has in mind, and he hopes by the time Corpus Christi is reached, where he is to spend four days on the Texas ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft, to be able to sit down calmly and meditate over the trip.

Mrs. Roosevelt at Venice.

VENICE—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt with her children and Miss Carow, her sister, arrived at the Excelsior Palace Hotel, Lido.

Wright and Airship in Gotham Flight

CURTISS AND WRIGHT TO FLY OVER GOTHAM

During most of my flights over there the conditions were about the same as they are to-day, except that hardly a breath of air was stirring."

No Flight Over Skyscrapers.

"Wouldn't it be possible for you to fly over the downtown section of the city?" he was asked.

"It might be," was the reply. "But anyone who tries to fly over a lot of buildings during the present stage of aeroplane development is foolish.

"A law ought to be passed prohibiting such flights. It is dangerous to persons in the streets as well as to the aviator.

"The aeroplane I have here is the best I have ever constructed. It is a combination of the best of all our previous machines."

Curtiss was too busy with his machine to talk very much. "My aeroplane is in excellent condition," he said. "I am more than anxious to fly right away, but believe it best to wait until the wind subsides a little."

MUSIC-MAD GIRL A PUZZLE TO PSYCHISTS

WORCESTER, Sept. 28.—Worcester physicians and psychists are puzzled over the strange case of an Orange street girl who faints in ecstacy when she hears a violin played by an artist at close range. She has money, position and everything else that a young woman can desire and intense passion for music. It is just because of this that she is compelled to forgo the pleasures of all musical festivals.

There are ardent music lovers who are obliged to remain away from festivals just because they are unable to stand the charm and intoxication produced on their sensitive natures by the musical art, says Joseph F. Henrechon of Hartford, at present visiting in Worcester. He said:

"There is a book called 'A Daughter of Music,' a remarkable tale which deals with a woman lured by music to her own destruction. We know of simpler instances when the glamor of the music in stageland is part of the attraction that takes young women from home. I have heard of a few cases in which music affected women to the point of exhaustion. And we all know how men who sing can win the hearts of women. The artistic temperament has something to do with the case you see. Music-mad folk are more common than one would suppose who had not looked into the subject.

"There may be some pre-natal influence in the case of persons who cannot stand the shock that their nerves receive when beautiful music is played. Their emotional natures may or may not be keen on other subjects. The yielding to music's influence may be a form of hysteria."

MANCHESTERS WILL TOUR THE WORLD

CINCINNATI, Sept. 28.—The Duke and Duchess of Manchester, accompanied by the father of the Duchess, Eugene Zimmerman, sail about April from San Francisco on a tour of the world. They go to Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, Manchuria, China, the Russian Empire and from there to the Black Sea, the Mediterrean and back to England. They will be gone on this journey about twelve or fourteen months.

MEET IN OFFICE; WED ON SIGHT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 28.—Miss May Clemmons of Pittsburg came here to collect a sum of money in the office of Judge Evans. While there J. E. Xtoney of Youngstown came in. It was a case of love at first sight and within an hour the Judge was requested to postpone the legal matter long enough to wed the pair, which was done and they left on the next train on a honeymoon trip.

11-MILE CUT ON CONCORD LINE

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 28.—A high railroad official here is authority for the statement that at the annual meeting of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad in Manchester, Oct. 7, it will be voted to relay the rails of the road between Suncook and Candia, which were torn up in 1861. This will shorten the distance between Concord and Portsmouth 11 miles.

A LITTLE RED SPOT

Novel Experiment by Which it May Be Made to Disappear.

A peculiar feature about poslam, the new skin discovery, is that no one is asked to buy it without first sending to the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, for an experimental sample and applying same to an affected part of the skin, about the size of a silver dollar. It will clear the spot so treated in twenty-four hours—a remarkable visual demonstration of its powers.

While poslam has been mentioned principally in connection with the cure of eczema, the most stubborn of skin diseases, it must be remembered that when used for itch, hives, pimples, blotches, acne, itching feet, scaly scalp, chafing of infants and similar minor skin troubles, its action is all the more pronounced, results being seen after an overnight application. As only a small quantity of poslam is necessary to cure such cases, a special fifty-cent package, usually sufficient, has been placed on sale at all Riker-Jaynes drug stores, Houghton & Dutton drug dept., and other leading drug stores in Boston and throughout the country.

NINE DEAD IN TRAIN WRECK; SCORES HURT

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Nine persons are known to be dead, three are missing and scores were injured to-day, when the midnight flyer of the Pan Handle Railroad collided into the rear of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul stock train at Fourteenth and Rockwell streets.

The dead and injured were mostly stock dealers from Montana and Dakota.

The identified dead are H. P. Potter, stockman, Diamond, N. D.; Don Schlanger, stockman, Fayette, S. D.; Frank Toch—Postle.

D. H. Hamilton, Minnesota, North Dakota, stock man.

Jacob Notz, stock man, of Cullen, North Dakota.

Conductor Bond of the stock train was taken from the wreck supposedly dead but was found to be alive. He is now expected to live.

It is believed that the number of injured, most of them seriously and several probably fatally, will run as high as thirty persons. Almost immediately after the wreck, Coroner Hoffman, through his aids, began a thorough and sweeping investigation into the circumstances of the wreck, with a view to placing responsibility for the toll of death.

Preparations were made for the opening of an inquest at an early hour.

None of the passengers or crew of the passenger train was injured. The dead and injured stockmen were huddled in the caboose of the stock special. Two cars of stock were burned to death before the fire department put out the blaze.

Mangled Bodies in Debris.

The passenger train had plunged into the caboose of the stock train and the caboose had been shoved directly through the car of cattle directly ahead. Three other cars were telescoped by the shock. The caboose and the stock car, in one jumbled mass, were burning when the first engine company arrived.

The scene was a horrifying one. By the light of the flames which already had enveloped the caboose and the wrecked cattle cars they saw the mangled bodies scattered throughout the debris, most of them being caught between the walls of the caboose and those of the cars just in front which had been crushed together with terrific force into an almost inextricable mass.

When the locomotive had plowed through the caboose, splitting it in two, both portions were carried forward and telescoped into the cattle cars, where the bodies of the men were mingled with those of the cattle.

MOTORMAN SAVES GIRL FROM DEATH

Miss Mary Perry, aged twenty-two of No. 210 Bridge street, Cambridge, had a narrow escape from death to-day when while crossing the street she fell in front of an outward bound Harvard square car near her home. The motorman quickly reversed the speed, bringing the car to a stop only a few inches from Miss Perry's head. When the girl fell women screamed and several men rushed to pick her up. She had only received slight abrasions of the head. She was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

NEW WIRELESS RECORD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—A new wireless record between Honolulu and San Francisco has been established by Operator Phelps of the steamer Alameda. Tied up at her dock at Honolulu, a distance of 2,100 miles from this port, the Alameda has been in communication with a wireless bureau here. Phelps announced the arrival of the Alameda before the cable did.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

HURLED 15 FEET BY AUTO.

ORANGE, Sept. 28.—Victor Lindquist, 13, of No. 189 West River street, was struck by an automobile owned by C. W. Hawks of Shelburne Falls, and thrown 15 feet in the air. The boy was badly injured and was taken in the automobile to the office of Dr. A. C. Leach and then rushed to the Greenfield hospital.

HARRIMAN FORTUNE IS $150,000,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—With the final and official probating of the will of E. H. Harriman at Goshen, Wall Street heard to-day that he had left $150,000,000 instead of the even century of millions, which was all fortune estimators were ready to credit him at the time of his death.

The reason that the estimators were just $50,000,000 out of the way is not hard to find. E. H. Harriman always liked to give the idea that he was in business to make fortunes for others first.

The revised figures come from sources that are authoritative, although, in view of a possibly inflated inheritance tax, none of the Harriman attorneys or intimates would commit themselves to-day for publication.

Heavy Holder of Southern Pacific.

No schedule of the estate has yet been made, but from men who have access to stock books, it is known that Mr. Harriman had half his fortune invested in Southern Pacific stock and interests which depend upon Southern Pacific for success. Union Pacific owns practically half of Southern Pacific and the Harriman estate enough of the rest to furnish absolute control of the road's destinies as long as Judge Robert S. Lovett, Harriman's self-appointed successor, remains in command.

In the official probate proceedings at Goshen Mrs. Harriman was represented by Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, who owes his office to the late financier, and by Charles C. Tegathoff, his former personal secretary, both witnesses of the famous ninety-word will. Papers were presented by which Mrs. Harriman formally qualified as sole executrix.

Guardian of the Children.

The guardian of the Harriman children, the eventual heirs of the large part of his vast estate, was named in the person of Joseph W. Gott, an attorney of Goshen. For twenty-five years he has transacted most of the business of E. H. Harriman, in Orange county, including the purchase of 15,000 acres of the Arden estate.

No request was made for an appraiser. If W. J. Wygant of Newburgh, the official appraiser of the county, makes an estimate that is satisfactory it is likely that the estate will pay the inheritance tax asked and avoid further expense.

BOSTON MAN IN EXPLORERS' WAR

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 28.—A wordy warfare is being waged in the English newspapers in Japan similar to the Peary-Cook controversy in the United States, with regard to the descent last month into the crater of Mt. Asama by Professor Jay J. Rogers of Chicago. Dr. Clay McCauley of Boston wrote stating that Professor Rogers had greatly magnified the adventure and instead of being lowered into the crater had crawled down the rough slope leading into it.

COUGHING BURST BLOOD VESSEL

Says Danger Avoided and Cures Coughs in 5 Hours.

A writer for the medical press states that coughing is responsible for the bursting of blood vessels quite frequently. A cough or cold means inflammation (fever) and congestion, and these in turn indicate that the body is full of poisons and waste matter. Simple relief, as found in patent cough medicines, and whiskey, often result in more harm than good; as they cause more congestion. A tonic-laxative cough syrup will work marvels and here follows a prescription which is becoming famous for its prompt relief and thorough cures. It rids the system of the cause, except it be consumption. Don't wait for consumption to grasp its victim, but begin this treatment, which cures some in five hours. Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age.

JUDGE FINDS STONE SLAIN BY PLOUFFE

CLINTON, Sept. 28.—Raymond Plouffe, the farmer and milkman, is held as guilty of the murder of Dr. Henry N. Stone, the rich Newburyport dentist, two weeks ago last evening on his way from Harvard to Ayer, in a report of the inquest into the tragedy filed in the Superior Court by Justice Jonathan Smith of the Clinton District Court.

"Stone came to his death," Judge Smith reports, "by being shot twice by a revolver fired by Raymond Plouffe, and by having his skull broken and crushed by blows of a stone held and wielded by the hands of Raymond Plouffe."

The report says that when Stone left the home of his sister, Mrs. Clara Davis, to be driven to the train by Plouffe, he had a large sum of money with him, estimated at $700 and that he was never seen alive after he left the house. When Plouffe was arrested the following Saturday he had $221 on him.

The report does not mention the name of George LaPointe, who is held with Plouffe on the charge of murder. The police claim that Lapointe was on the road where the attack had been planned and helped beat the victim to death.

HELD FOR HARVARD DORMITORY THEFTS

Charged with breaking and entering fashionable Harvard dormitories, Thomas J. W. Coward, aged seventeen, of No. 1 Athens terrace, and John F. Burns, aged seventeen, of No. 22 Athens street, Cambridge, were arrested by Patrolman Fred Ellis of the Central square police station this noon. The breaks are in Brentford Hall, where a typewriter was stolen, and Claverley Hall, where clothing was stolen. The boys will be arraigned in Cambridge District Court to-morrow morning.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

FIGHT TO LYNCH CHILDREN'S SLAYER

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Tripled lines of guards to-day are protecting from mob violence Theodore Rizzo, who upon his confession deliberately killed Theresa Procopio, aged seven; Fred Infusino, two, and tried to kill Fannie Infusino, seven, after kidnapping the children. Feeling among the Italian residents of the city is at fever heat.

MRS. DENNETT STILL ARDENT FOR SUFFRAGE

The fact that Hartley Dennett, the Boston architect, has deserted his wife, Mary Ware Dennett, to become a "family friend" of the wife of Dr. H. Lincoln Chase, as the doctor himself prefers to express it, has not served to cool the ardor of Mrs. Dennett in the equal suffrage movement.

Mrs. Dennett, who with her two children, lives at South Framingham, attended a meeting of the Springfield Equal Suffrage League yesterday, and made a spirited address.

"The democratic attitude of the people of Springfield," said Mrs. Dennett, "showed that they were willing to receive the message we have for them and that they were courteous and attentive. We were impressed with this fact particularly, and it promises good results for the future."

A big mass meeting was planned for early in November when Carrie Chapman Catt, head of the international suffrage movement, will speak.

CORDON FORMING ABOUT THE MOORS

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 28.—The Spanish army about Mount Gurugu drew closer to-day around the Moorish stronghold, while the tribesmen forsook their positions and hurried inland. The Spanish commandant believes that with one further step, closing the last link in the chain about the Moorish base of operations, the Moroccan war will end with all Moorish resistance crushed out. The final step will be taken very soon. Already preparations are completed for it.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

WON'T REOPEN CASE AGAINST ALDERMAN

District Attorney John J. Higgins of Middlesex county declined to-day to re-open a charge of assault and battery and larceny against Alderman James F. Black of East Cambridge, recently preferred by William J. Donovan, an East Cambridge politician.

The trouble occurred the night before the last primaries in East Cambridge, when Black was a candidate for Representative in the First Middlesex District. Donovan has also filed a civil suit for $5,000 against Black.

DON'T MISS THE OPENING CHAPTERS OF "THROUGH THE WALL"

BY CLEVELAND MOFFETT

The Greatest Mystery Story Written in Years

THIS most ingenious detective story is at the same time a most charming love story. It applies to the solution of a monstrous crime the latest devices known to the psychological laboratory, finally convicting the culprit by the words of his own mouth and the beating of his own heart.

It exemplifies the power of great wealth in balking the efforts of justice—the sinister influence of "The Man Higher Up." It pits a man's sense of honor and an innocent girl's pure love against an evil woman's jealousy and an unscrupulous millionaire's dastardly plotting. It is dramatic, tense, mystifying, thrilling. It grows in interest to the last page.

"Through the Wall" will be published serially in the Boston American. No one that enjoys a good story can afford to miss reading it. Remember that it the Pole, as he outlines in his tale, but neither time did he state that he had looked for that cairn."

PEARY GIVES OUT ATTACK ON DR. COOK

Cook Sledge Worthless.

"Did you see any of Dr. Cook's equipment at Etah?"

"I did."

"Did you see his snow shoes or his sledge?"

"I did. Cook's sledge was lying on the rocks high above the beach and in a position where anyone could see."

"Could you describe it? Was it your Morris Jesup sledge?"

"It was modeled on lines unlike those of any other sledge I have ever seen used in Arctic work."

"Was it such a sledge as you would likely use?"

"It was not. I would not trust myself with it for any length of journey. It would not have traveled one day on the ice with a standard load."

"Do you think Cook could have gone to the Pole with it?"

"Absolutely no. Never at any time while I was in the north did I think there was a possibility of Cook having reached the Pole, nor did I think so later."

"Did you have any idea of the nature of Cook's property in Whitney's trunk when you requested Whitney to put it ashore in Etah and cache it?"

"No, I did not. Whitney told me Cook had been north of my best record at 87.6, but that is all. He never mentioned flags or instruments, nor did I see them when he unpacked them from his trunk and put the articles in a cache at Etah as I suggested. If Whitney knew the immense value of those things to Dr. Cook, why did he not go back on the Jeanie for them?"

"Why," exclaimed Peary, "it is beyond my conception that a man could trust such a flag or such proofs to his own father, mother or brother. I carried my flag sewed in my undershirt and wrapped around my body. All the way from the Pole to Battle Harbor my papers were sewed into my inside pocket; so my records, my instruments and photographs were carefully wrapped and placed in a waterproof sleeping bag. I slept over them every night until we got south, and in the daytime they were on the quarterdeck. I kept them there in case we got crushed in the ice, when I could have thrown them into the water. The bags would have floated like corks. They were so carefully wrapped that had they struck on the ice none of the instruments would have been broken."

CHARGE THAT COOK PHOTOGAPHS WERE TAKEN 8 YEARS AGO

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Brooklyn explorer of the Arctic, who has been feted in New York for the past week, or the New York Herald, which has published the authorized version of his northern trip, one or the other, was definitely charged today with claiming credit for iceberg photographs taken eight years ago, and giving them a copyright stamp, which indicated they had been taken on the physician's latest dash north.

The Brooklyn Standard Union says that the photographs were taken "in 1901 by Herbert Berri and his tutor and friend, L. C. Stone, while north on the Peary relief ship Eric, commanded by Herbert L. Bridgman, of which Dr. Cook was then the surgeon."

"Have you seen the charge of using old photographs taken by others made by the Brooklyn Standard Union?" was the question an AMERICAN representative asked Dr. Cook after the usual fire of anti-Peary questions had been asked.

"That is easily explained," he said then. "I have never claimed that all the pictures used lately were taken on my last trip. Some of them were taken on my previous trip north in 1901, and some were taken by Mr. Bradley, who financed my expedition.

"I remember this particular iceberg picture in 1901. While I was taking photographs Mr. Berri and others were also snapping cameras. It is not impossible that we took the same iceberg from practically the same position and that we got almost identical negatives."

At this time Dr. Cook was talking about an iceberg picture which the New York Herald published yesterday morning.

"A unique iceberg: Photographed by Dr. Cook," which was duly "copyrighted, 1909, by the New York Herald Company."

"We have been trying to illustrate my story, and these pictures served just as well as any I may have taken on my last trip. If there is any claim that they were taken, then it is the fault of the newspaper and not myself."

REIDY SHY 1 ON RECOUNT

The recount of the votes cast in the Democratic primary in Ward 15 shows that Representative Michael J. Reidy, who had been declared successful in his canvass for renomination, had lost to Edward D. Collins by one vote. Reidy's vote was the same as on the original count, 1,019, but Collins was found to have had 1,020 instead of 1,013, the number originally credited him. Francis L. Colpoys, renominated for Representative, had 1,021, instead of the 1024 shown by the original count.

In Ward 3 it was found that the Mellen and Shaw factions each elected three delegates to the convention to nominate a candidate for District Attorney, while six candidates for delegate are tied. As the strength of each is equal it is not likely that another primary will be held to fill the delegation.

Today the Election Board is making the Republican recounts, the closest of which is believed to be for Ward Committeeman in Ward 1.

VESSEL LOST: 94 DROWNED

RANGOON, Sept. 28.—The Burgomaster Clan Macklntosh blew up on her Calcutta voyage and all persons on board perished, save one, according to a report reached here to-day.

It is believed that ninety-five persons were on board.

MAY CURTAIL OUTPUT OF BIG COTTON MILLS

FALL RIVER, Sept. 28.—A meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association was held to consider the proposition of the Arkwright Club, an organization composed of the principal cotton manufacturers of New England, for the curtailment of production in the mills, but Secretary Clarence M. Hathaway of the association said that there was no statement to give out.

Inquiry among the local manufacturers, however, shows that many of them are in favor of a curtailment for a limited period, if all the mills in New England accept the proposition.

BOSTON COLLEGE DEBATE FRIDAY

That the adoption of Plan No. 1 for the city charter of Boston would be more to the interest and advantage of Boston than Plan No. 2, will be the subject of a debate by the Fulton debating society of Boston College on next Friday afternoon.

The affirmative will be taken by Louis F. Kelleher, 10, and David B. Waters, '11, while Willia mE. Conroy, '10, and Cornelius Guiney, '11, will uphold the negative side.

30,000 MEN IN LINE TO GREET GOMPERS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 28.—At a meeting of the Central Labor Union final details of the reception and parade for Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, were arranged. Mr. Gompers will sail from Havre, France, October 3, arriving in New York on the ninth. It is stated that 30,000 persons will be in the parade to welcome him on October 13.

COMPEL EMPLOYERS TO EDUCATE GIRLS

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Chicago's superintendent of schools, favors a law compelling employers of girls between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years to send those girls to school for a certain period each day, possibly two hours. She has suggested that the Board of Education erect a special "continuation" school for these girls, just as has been planned to educate working boys along special industrial lines.

RECORD RUN IN AUTO TO SAVE MAN'S LIFE

HARRISON, Sept. 28.—George B. Morrill of the firm of Burnham & Morrill made a record run in his automobile from Harrison to Bridgton to get a surgeon for Erastus Caswell, who had been injured in the Burnham & Morrill packing house. Mr. Morrill ran his automobile to Bridgton, six miles away, and returned with a surgeon in less than twenty minutes.

COOK PRAISED BY PEARY AS EARNEST AIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Seventeen years ago last Thursday Commander—then Lieutenant—Peary returned to Philadelphia from his first polar expedition, which was organized and financed by the Academy of Natural Sciences of this city, at an expense of $10,000, on condition that "complete sets of specimens collected and observations made" should "belong to and be the property of the academy."

The academy has received from the man it started on the road to Arctic fame one preliminary and entirely unscientific narrative, filling nine small pages of its "proceedings" for 1892, and forty-six bird skins.

These facts, recorded in the archives of the academy, throw new light on the explorer who is seeking to discredit Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who, curiously enough, was a member of this very expedition and of whom Peary said in the report mentioned:

"The report would be incomplete without an acknowledgment of my obligation to Dr. Cook. Patient and skilful surgeon, indefatigable worker, earnest student of the peculiar people among whom we lived, he has obtained, I believe, a record of the tribe unapproachable in ethnological archives."

Some One Else Got Them.

While Peary was on this expedition, and therefore bound by the academy's stipulation as to specimens and observations, he sent a collection of Eskimo curios to Professor F. W. Putnam, chief of the department of ethnology at the World's Fair, Chicago.

This statement is based on the following letter, written by Peary to Professor Benjamin Sharp, another member of the expedition, and dated McCormick Bay, Greenland, July 29, 1891:

"Dear Sir:

"I turn over to you the following article illustrative of the life of the Arctic highlanders, obtained at the Eskimo settlement, Ittibin, Whale Sound, the same to be taken home in the Kite in your charge and forwarded to Professor F. W. Putnam, chief of the Department of Ethnology at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago. Your instructions and appointment from Professor Putnam will cover such additional articles as you may obtain on the return voyage.

"I sincerely hope that you may be able to obtain for Professor Putnam a native stone house and a series of good skeletons. The minor objects necessary to complete the exhibit I shall be able to obtain here during the winter.

"Very respectfully,

"R. E. PEARY, U. S. N."

Eskimo Dogs Vanish.

As the Kite came up the Delaware on September 23, 1892, Peary asked the academy officials, who met him, what he should do with his Eskimo dogs.

It was suggested that they be sent to the Zoo in the city and he accepted the suggestion. The next day he took the dogs out to the Zoo, and it is still the impression that Peary presented them as a gift.

A special enclosure was prepared at some expense, and the dogs were advertised as a feature. Persons came in crowds to see them, and every one was delighted until one afternoon Peary visited the Zoo. He said he had to have the dogs right away to exhibit in New York city, and took them with him.

That was the last heard of the "ice horses" by either the Zoo or the academy.

NEW TRUSTEE FOR MRS. EDDY'S ESTATE

The announcement that Adam H. Dinkey had just been made one of the trustees of the estate of the Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in place of Henry M. Baker, resigned, comes to-day as a surprise to the members of the church. It is announced that Mr. Baker's retirement from the board is caused by his becoming counsel for the trustees. Mr. Dinkey came here about two years ago from Kansas City, Mo., where he was prominent as a Christian Scientist, to serve as Mrs. Eddy's private secretary at her home, No. 384 Beacon street, Brookline. The other trustees are Josiah E. Fernald of Concord, N. H., and Archibald McClellan of Boston.

REPARTEE BRINGS TWO YEARS IN JAIL

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 28.—For talking back to Judge Tuck in the district court Fred Hane, who said he had no home or occupation, was sentenced to the state farm for three years.

After being arraigned for stealing milk Hane was given a sentence of one year, when he shouted out to the judge: "Why not hang me?" following this remark with another of an insulting nature. Immediately the judge ordered the prisoner brought before him, when he raised the sentence to three years.

BRADLEY FAILURE DUE TO "DELUGE"

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The creditors of Herbert A. Bradley, the bankrupt American showman, met here to-day to attempt to effect an adjustment of their affairs. Bradley produced the "Deluge" at Earls-court Exposition and other shows in London, as well as in Wiesbaden, Germany. He attributes his failure to the unpopularity of "The Deluge."

SEEKS TO RESTRAIN VAUDEVILLE TEAM

John J. Quigley, a theatrical agent, in the Superior Court to-day asked Judge Richardson for an injunction restraining Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hussey of New York, a musical comedy team, from appearing at the Lynn Theatre for the next two weeks. Quigley claims they are under contract to appear at Acker's Theatre, Halifax, N. S., during that period. There will be a hearing to-morrow.

NEW BANK BUILDING TO BE READY DEC. 1

The Federal Trust Company is to occupy the new building at the corner of Devonshire and Water streets commencing December 1, when it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy. The structure will be known as the William Lawrence building. The trust company have taken it for a long lease, and when the new banking fixtures are installed it will be one of the best appointed banking institutions in the city.

TEAMSTER RUN OVER.

ORANGE, Sept. 28.—James Fenton of Athol fell from his truck, while attempting to turn his horse around. The horse kept going and Fenton rolled under the truck. His chest was badly crushed and he was taken to the Gardner hospital.

J. Otis Wardwell, Who Is Dethroned as Boss

The defeat of J. Otis Wardwell, as a member of the Republican State Committee by J. Franklin Batchelder, in the Republican Fourth Essex Senatorial Convention is to-day regarded the State over as the greatest blow which has been given to the Lodge-Gardner machine in years.

"Jake" Wardwell, the king of the State House lobby, has gone down to defeat through the leadership of Arthur L. Nason of Haverhill, who in Tuesday's caucuses in the Fourth Essex Senatorial district, secured the nomination for the Senate. Nason made the political interment of Wardwell the leading issue.

Helps Income Tax Fight.

The defeat of Wardwell is the most significant event that has taken place in Massachusetts politics in a decade.

It means the revolt of decent Republicans against notorious ring rule; that Senator Lodge shall take notice that he no longer owns the party body and boots; that the people are beginning to think for themselves instead of allowing the Boss to form their opinions; that the income tax is favored by a majority of the Republicans of this State; that members of the Republican party stand for direct nominations, and that the day of the lobbyist who makes laws in the interests of the corporations and kills bills in the interest of the people are numbered.

In no State has there been a more conspicuous example of a boss than that afforded by "Jake" Wardwell. He has been not only Lodge's man Friday, but he has assumed airs and dictatorial powers that Lodge himself would not openly countenance. As one of the dominating members of the State Committee for twenty-five years, he has helped to build up that coterie of political highbinders which has nauseated the better element of the party for years—the Essex County Ring!

For twenty-five years Wardwell has held the party of that district in his iron grip. Decent men with laudable ambitions to rise politically have had to grovel at his feet, or bury their aspirations. To fight him meant to court political oblivion.

Foe to Popular Measures.

Wardwell became the trusted, even chummy friend of Lodge. He stood as the watchdog on Beacon Hill to see that no popular legislation went through, and that the corporations which supply the "sinews of war" for the G. O. P. got all that was coming to them, which is about all there is.

Then the Republicans began to get their breath. One of these Republicans is J. Frank Batchelder of Haverhill, where Wardwell has so long been a Czar. The senatorial convention held yesterday at Peabody afforded an excellent opportunity for the disgusted members of the party to register a long-delayed kick.

Wardwell and his bossism and ring rule went down to defeat!

Nason, fighting for the income tax and for direct nominations, won!

When it is taken into consideration that Wardwell fought with all the power of the machine; that pull and money were used to the limit; that the power of the Boss lobby was invoked, with Congressman Gardner, right in his home bailiwick, doing all that he could to save the situation, it is a remarkable victory.

A member of a big law firm, Wardwell is a legislative counsel, chiefly for the Boston Elevated. But he takes an interest in many other corporation measures.

First there was the direct opportunity to vote for or against Wardwell, who had been elected a member of the State committee without a break for a quarter of a century. Then there was the Senate nomination to which Arthur L. Nason aspired. Nason is opposed to Wardwell and Wardwell tactics and traditions. Wardwell with all his craftiness laid plans to defeat Nason. He helped three candidates in the field to split the vote. And the same delegates who elected the State committeeman nominated the Senator.

Fair and Square Test.

It was a fair and square test of Wardwell, the lobbyist; of Wardwell, the Lodge shadow; of Wardwell, the representative of the ring system.

It was a fair and square expression of how a majority of the delegates to the convention stood on the income tax and direct nominations, because Nason made his fight on these planks and declared that he would battle for them in the Senate if he were elected.

Wardwell is on the Hill to see that no Public Opinion bill gets very far toward becoming a law. He has done it. He is there to fight direct nominations and he will be lined up against the income tax when the Legislature takes that matter up at the next session.

As for the election of Senators by a direct vote of the people—a man with such a bill as that gets headed off before he reaches the front steps of the State House. Lodge has given Jake specific directions on that little matter.

And now the revolt in the Republican camp has started and it has started in the Republican stronghold. It has been successful just where the party thought it was invincible. It is a sign of what can, and what may happen in other parts of the State.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT'S TUTOR EARNS TRIP

While scores of tourists are trying to get accommodations of any kind at any price on transatlantic liners, Miss Hermine Luders, an attractive young German musician arriving on the Hamburg-American steamer Bethania, not only had one of the best rooms on the liner free, but was paid money by the company at the end of the trip.

Miss Luders is an accomplished pianist, and gave special instruction to Ethel Roosevelt at the White House when last in this country. She was unable to secure a stateroom on any of the steamships for months to come. Director Ballin, one of the managers of the Hamburg-American line, came to her rescue.

"Sign on the ship's articles," he told her. Miss Luders hesitated, for she didn't know just what sort of work would be required of her. She finally agreed and was signed as a "matron."

SIMPLE CEREMONY AT MEXICAN BORDER

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 28.—The meeting of President Juarez of President Taft and President Diaz will be conducted with simple formality. The United States executive will make two visits to Mexican soil and M. Diaz will cross the Rio Grande into Texas once.

In the forenoon President Diaz will be welcomed to the United States by President Taft, the Secretary of War and the Governor of Texas. At noon the ceremony will be repeated on the other side of the river with President Diaz as the host, and at 5 p. m. President Taft will return to Juarez, where he will be the guest of honor at a banquet.

BOSTON TO GET NEW STEAMER LINE TO NORTH

As the result of an inspection of trade conditions and ports in Nova Scotia, made by Calvin Austin, president of the Eastern Steamship Company, Eugene N. Foss, Galen N. Stone, H. H. Raymond, president of the Mallory and Clyde Steamship Companies, and W. D. Barclay, general manager of the Mackenzie & Mann, it is to-day anounced as probable that the Eastern Steamship Company will establish a line of steamships running between Boston and Port Wade on the northwest coast of Nova Scotia.

The plan is to make the Canadian Northern Railroad more than ever a competitor with the Dominion Atlantic. The Canadian Northern's Halifax & Southwestern road from Port Wade to Halifax is rivaling the Dominion road in securing Nova Scotian trade. Now it is proposed to enter the field between Yarmouth and Boston.

The government has just completed a wharf at Port Wade which cost $110,000, and with the establishment of the steamship line to Boston the Canadian Northern will be in a better position to compete with the Dominion Atlantic and the Eastern Steamship Company will have a new source of revenue.

SHOOTING PAINS IN THE LIMBS

Caused in This Case by Rheumatic Poison in the Blood.

The Tonic Treatment Reaches the Root of the Disease and Its Cures Are Permanent.

Most treatments for rheumatism aim to "keep down" the poison in the blood and enable nature to cure that particular attack. Then, when the system becomes run down from any cause the disease again gets the upper hand, and it all has to be done over.

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has proved by hundreds of cures that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out these poisons through the regular channels of excretion, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done the rheumatism is permanently cured and as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attacks of rheumatism.

Mrs. J. L. Deacks, of No. 116 Pearl street, Newton, Mass., has no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for rheumatism. She says:

"I suffered for years from rheumatism, which, I think, was brought on by exposure. I had terrible shooting pains in my limbs and the muscles of my hands. I was very nervous and at times was so restless that I could not sleep. Oftentimes I was in such a condition that I could hardly move about.

"I used liniments but they did nothing more than ease the pain for a time. Finally I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the advice of a friend. They seemed to be just what I needed. My nerves became steadier and in a short time the pains had disappeared. I can heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are suffering from rheumatism and the treatment you are taking is not relieving you, or if you are actually getting worse while taking other treatment, then do not delay but give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a thorough trial. The remedy that cures others will cure you.

A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free to any sufferer from rheumatism upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be mailed, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

2,000,000 SEE GREAT PARADE IN NEW YORK

space and every roof ledge, in addition to the thousands of expensive grand stand seats, were packed with humanity, and Police Commissioner Baker had drawn on the strength of the force to its very limit to provide protection for the people from pests, stumpedes and crooks.

All along the line were emergency hospital stations, with ambulances and surgeons ready for instant response to calls.

These were connected by field telephone service, which also gives access to communication for police booths and the public telephone service, covering every precinct station in the greater city.

The perfecting plans for Governor Hughes and other dignitaries was at Forty-first street, in front of the new ninety-foot arch beside the court of honor.

In Files of Sixteen.

The parade swept down the avenue in files of sixteen men abreast, all organizations saluting the governor six paces from the point which he occupied on the reviewing stand. All military organizations were in full dress uniform.

The review was repeated at the Washington Arch, when the grand marshal was saluted.

There were fifty-four floats, representing the Indian, Dutch, Colonial and modern periods of this country's history. The escort consisted of 20,000 men, including members of every national and patriotic society in the great city, many of them in uniform or costume. There, with thousands of American and foreign flags, and almost continuous music, extending the whole line of parade from One hundred and Tenth street to Washington Arch, the grandest spectacle ever seen in New York, or even in the world.

The place assigned to Mayor McClellan and Herman Ridder, Presiding Vice-President of the Commission, and Chairman of the Historical and Carnival Parades Committee was at the head of the gain processional pageant.

General Charles F. Roe, the grand marshal, was next, with his chief of staff, Lieutenant-Colonel George Albert Wingate, and his aides.

Leading the First Division was a body of members of various societies. Four hundred Friendly Sons of St. Patrick led, followed by 2,000 men from the Ancient Order of Hibernians, 1,500 from Italian organizations, 1,500 Bohemians, 200 Poles and 250 Hungarians.

History of New York.

Preceded by heralds came the first float, the Title Car, "History of New York," followed by 250 members of Norwegian societies. Then appeared the Title Car of the Indian Period, with floats representing the Legend of Hiawatha, the Five Nations of the Five Sachems, escorted by members of the Order of Red Men, the Seasons of Rice, Game, Fruits, of Hunting and of Snows, and the War Dance, escorted by the Tammany Society, Columbian Order. On these floats real Iroquois Indians took the part of the tableaux.

The Second Division, representing the Dutch Period, and was led by 1,000 members of the Italian Societies and 1,000 Hebrews from Kings, Queens and Richmond Counties. The Title Car was followed by the "Half Moon," "The Fate of Henry Hudson," and the First Vessel built on Manhattan Island, each manned and escorted by the United Dutch Societies of New York. Then came the "Purchase of Manhattan," and Bronck's Treaty, the latter manned and escorted by Danes. Bronck himself having been a Dane. Floats representing the Reception of Stuyvesant and Bowling on Bowling Green followed; one representing the Huguenots being manned and escorted by the Huguenot Societies of the City. One of the prettiest of the floats, St. Nicholas, was attended by 250 children, gathered by the City History Club.

Swedish and Irish societies, including 1,500 members of the Clan-na-Gael, preceded the floats of the Colonial Period, and the Swedes, under the presidency of Charles S. Tolmason, escorted the Title Car, "Schuyler and Indians at the Court of St. James," was escorted by members of the Society of Colonial Wars, with a mounted body guard. Scotch societies, in kilts, and marching to the music of the bagpipes, escorted the "Trial of Peter Zenger."

The "Stamp Act" was accompanied by the Junior Order of American Mechanics; a "Colonial Dame" by the Patriotic Sons of America. "The Governor Dongan" float was in charge of 250 members of the Irish League, Major E. T. McCrystal supervising the noted governor. Following were the old Manor Hall in Yonkers. The Evacuation of Marinus Willett "Pulling Down the Statue of George III," and "Publishing the Constitution" were manned and escorted by Sons of the Revolution. "The Storming of Stony Point" by American Continentals.

"The Capture of Andre" was represented by descendants of John Paulding. The Order of Cincinnati escorted the float bearing their name. One hundred and fifty students of Columbia University, in cocked hats, had charge of "Hamilton's Barbecue."

The pair of Washington, in "Washington Taking the Oath of Office," was taken by Richard Sheldon, once a tackle in Yale and 6 feet 4½ inches tall, and members of the City Cavalry escorted the float. "Washington's Cradle" was escorted by the Sons of the Revolution; "Nathan Hale," by 150 students of the City College, and "Washington's Farewell," a scene in France's Tavern, by Veterans of the Revolution. Children from the City History Club tramped along with "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and "The Legend of Rip Van Winkle."

"The Clermont" in Line.

The Fourth Division, representing the United States Period, was led by 500 members of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America. After the Title Car, and preceded by 250 men from the Irish-American Athletic Club, came "The Clermont," with a similar escort. To Martin Sheridan, the champion all-round athlete, the character of Hudson on this float was allotted. Preceding "Fulton's Ferry" were veterans of the Seventy-ninth Scottish Highlanders. The "Reception of Lafayette" was escorted by 200 men from French societies.

The "Erie Canal Boats" were guarded by Counties Athletic Union. The "Old Fire Engine," an exact reproduction of the "machine" with which they used to "run," was escorted by the Veteran and Exempt Firemen. Next came the "Old Roadster Sleigh." The Garibaldi float was preceded and followed by Italian societies, and next marched 250 members of the Order of Foresters. Closing the pageant were the floats "Croton Water," with park scenes; the "Statue of Liberty," with French societies, and "Father Knickerbocker receiving."

DENIES BREWER BUSCH IS DYING

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—Denial of recent reports that Adolphus Busch, the millionaire brewer, is in broken health and on the verge of death, has been received by Dr. S. J. Mattison of Pasadena, from his brother, Dr. F. C. E. Mattison, who was for some time the guest of Mr. Busch in Europe. "The stories that Mr. Busch's death was to be expected at any moment are erroneous," Dr. Mattison writes. "He is in good health and will be in Pasadena for the Winter as usual."

ENTIRE HUNGARIAN CABINET RESIGNS

BUDA PESTH, Sept. 28.—Official announcement was made to-day of the resignation of the entire Hungarian cabinet. Franz Kossuth, son of the famous Hungarian patriot, has undertaken the task of forming a new ministry.

WORLD SAVED, FAITHFUL FOLD TENTS AND GO

WEST DUXBURY, Sept. 28.—Practically a deserted village. Ashdod, the little hamlet "five miles from nowhere," where with singing and prayer the end of the world has been awaited for the past week, to-day holds less than thirty of the True Immersionists.

Four coach loads of the faithful have already left for their homes, and to-day none are on their way. The general meetings, for the present, are closed.

The tents which sheltered many of the communicants have been packed up and the sandy roads leading to the old Hitty settlement are no longer crowded with the curious.

That the rigid purification rites are over for the present was convincingly shown to-day. During the meetings the bakers in the neighboring towns which have been supplying the Immersionists with large quantities of food stuffs noticed that, although a large majority of the members were New Englanders, there was no demand for pies.

To-day, however, one of the large bakeries received an order for two dozen and a half of pies for immediate delivery.

The meeting just concluded partook largely of the nature of the annual convention of the sect.

BOARD SCORES COSTLY DRESS OF GRADUATES

Extravagance in dress or unnecessary expenditure by pupils at high school graduations should be eliminated.

Graduation exercises for grammar schools should be abandoned.

These are the recommendations made by a special committee of the Somerville School Board. The recommendations are contained in a lengthy report made to the board at the regular monthly meeting.

No definite action was taken by the board, as it was deemed advisable to give parents an opportunity to express their views on the proposed change. Accordingly, on motion of Dr. Curtis, chairman of the committee, the report was laid on the table for a month.

The special committee was appointed last May to consider the matter. At that time, and before the appointment of the committee, a majority of the members of the board expressed their views, each one taking a stand in opposition to graduation exercises for the grammar schools.

Members of the School Board felt that there were many parents who could ill afford to satisfy the demands of girl graduates, and yet they felt compelled to make the sacrifice for dress, carriage, gloves and bouquets in order that their children should suffer no humiliation.

The board received the resignation of Helen Tucker, who has taught school in Somerville for thirty-eight years.

PATROLMAN SAVES CHILD FROM FIRE

That Bertha Greenberg, seven years old, was not suffocated by smoke from a fire which started in the room in which she was sleeping in her parents' home on the top floor of the three-story tenement house, No. 77 Phillips street, West End, is due to the efforts of Patrolman A. F. Marston of Division 3.

The child was lying on a couch and the fire, which was first eating up a bureau on the other side of the room, was giving out clouds of smoke, when Marston rushed in and carried her to safety.

DEMOCRATS MAY NAME A REPUBLICAN

The announcement that the Democrats of Massachusetts proposed to place a liberal anti-Lodge Republican on their coming State ticket is today creating the widest interest and discussion. State Chairman Frederick J. McLeod, who, with representative Democrats from all parts of the State, held a conference at the Boston City Club, told of the departure the Democrats were expecting to make after the meeting had closed.

"I am not prepared to state who this man is to be," said Chairman McLeod, but I may say that plans are perfecting to give representation to a liberal Republican on the Democratic State ticket.

"The Republican State organization in Massachusetts is at variance with enlightened Republican sentiment in other States. The Democratic leaders plan to make the income tax and tariff reforms, as well as direct nominations and the establishment of a State Finance Commission, features of the platform this Fall.

CUMMINGS OUT TO BEAT O'CONNELL

In a statement sharply attacking Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, John J. Cummings, former O'Connell ally and late candidate for Senatorial honors in the Dorchester-Roxbury district, announces his own candidacy against O'Connell for Congress next year, provided no one else makes a live campaign against him. He charges O'Connell with supporting Robert Clark, son of Ward 21 for the Senate nomination against himself, a home candidate. Clark won.

"If he (O'Connell) has the temerity to run for Congress, after the record he made this year," he says, "I shall certainly do all in my power to rid the district of such a representative. Furthermore, if the only candidates against him are those who will make a milk and water campaign, I shall be the candidate for his seat, and it will be at least not a greater presumption on my part than was his first campaign against William S. McNary."

MUNSEY CARS LEAVE GOTHAM ON A FINE RUN

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The cars in the Munsey automobile reliability contest began their run to Philadelphia this morning. The men were anxious to bring the machines to the Quaker City and finish the day, as it brings them one more lap nearer Washington and the official end of the contest. The two Croxton-Keeton cars have withdrawn.

On the last run the contestants were worried by troubles, no less than six machines having been affected from Willimantic to Bridgeport. The run to-day was one of the most enjoyable of the tour. From Staten Island the route was through Perth Amboy Ferry to Lakewood, to Egg Harbor City and through Absecom to Atlantic City. Leaving Atlantic City, they will proceed directly to Philadelphia.

DARE DEVILS ENTERED FOR AUTO DERBY

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The nomination of two Buick cars to be driven by those daredevils of the automobile turf—Louis Chevrolet and Bobby Burman—made it evident to-day that there will be some sensational work in the Long Island stock car Derby, which will be run to-morrow to Riverhead, L. I. It was positively announced to-day by the motor contest association that seventeen cars will start in the five classes of the stock car Derby. Starter Fred Magner will send them away at one-minute intervals. The track will be closed at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning to give the contenders full sway over the roadway.

Trial spins were made to-day, and while the going was somewhat soggy it was announced that sixty miles an hour will be made easily. The cars will get off promptly at 8:30 o'clock over the Riverhead-Mattituck course. The event ranks in automobile importance with the Crown Point, Ind., and Lowell, Mass., road races.

BRESNAHAN UNPOPULAR?

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 28.—A story is published here that the Cardinals are laying down on Roger Bresnahan, their manager; that Bresnahan has found this town too small to live in, has abused his players, become exceedingly unpopular, and the fans will make St. Louis too hot for him if the Cardinals fail to finish in the first division next season.

According to the story, Bresnahan has hardly a friend among the city's baseball writers. It is claimed Bresnahan has snubbed persons right and left and bawled out his players on the field for no fault of their own.

YALE WANTS A BIG STADIUM

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28.—It leaked out to-day that J. Thompson, the Yale graduate athletic manager, was sent abroad this Summer to study the construction of stadiums in the Old World. He went to Chester, England, where he saw the football stadium which seats 60,000 people.

He has just returned and will report his findings to the Yale athletic committee when they meet to organize for the year and immediately take up the matter of a new stadium for Yale Field.

Yale wants a stadium which will seat between 50,000 and 60,000 people, but lacks the funds to pay for it and the matter of issuing bonds will be discussed.

YOUNG DONOHUE OFF TO FIGHT SULLIVAN

Young Donohue of Roxbury will leave for Manchester to-day and finish up preparing for his match with Kid Sullivan of Washington there. This sturdy pair of glove wielders will appear in the initial entertainment of the Queen City A. C. in its new abode, and the interest in the meeting is greater than in any affair of the sort that has been staged in Manchester in years.

Sullivan is due to arrive in this city Tuesday evening. He, too, will go right to the scene of the encounter and will finish his preparatory course there under the able direction of his manager, Sammy Harris of Baltimore.

Harris handled him recently at Albany in his successful combat with Frankie Madden, and feels confident that Sully will stop the Roxbury Kid.

ROLFE WINS BOUT WITH YOUNG JACK

At the Apollo A. C., Salem, last night, before the largest crowd of the season, Billy Rolfe of South Boston won the decision from Young Jack Johnson of the West End after twelve hot rounds. The first of the bout was fairly even, although Johnson's left jabs closed Rolfe's eye in the sixth and seventh. Rolfe piled up a big lead after the seventh, landing body and kidney punches with telling effect, and had Johnson holding on at the finish.

The semi-final was a hummer, Johnny Burns of Boston going eight rounds to a draw with Mike Malla of East Boston.

In the preliminary Young Larry Connolly of South Boston won the decision from Gus Rogers of Lynn in six rounds. Connolly was substituted for Tommy Murray of Lynn, who had injured his foot.

SOMERVILLE BOY HURT IN SCRIMMAGE

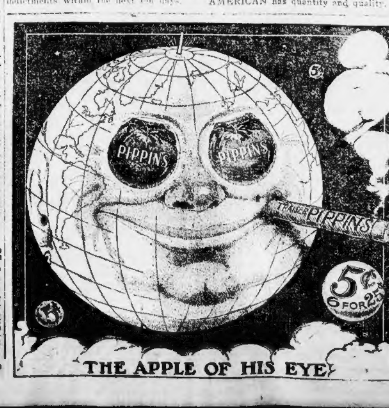

Ernest Fisher, end on the Somerville High School second eleven, sprained his ankle badly in a practice scrimmage with the first team on the Broadway Athletic grounds yesterday, and probably will be out of the game at least three weeks.

Fisher was one of the most promising of the new candidates. Last week his work steadily improved and Coach Dickerson expected to use him on the first team this week in a practice game.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN is the Seventh Day Wonder of New England.

BOOKIES PLEAD "NOT GUILTY"

NEW YOR, Sept. 28.—The nineteen bookmakers arrested at Gravesend and subsequently indicted, all pleaded not guilty through their joint counsel, John B. Stanchfield to-day. They were held in $1,000 bail each for trial on October 18 but it was announced by Mr. Stanchfield that demurrers would be entered to all the indictments within the next ten days.

DIXIE KID HAS BEATEN BEST MEN IN RING

Many of the curious have been puzzling their minds over what the Dixie Kid has done in the ring to warrant his appearing against the formidable Sam Langford.

It should be sufficient to assuage their thirst for information to know that Dixie Kid has been boxing fully ten years, and in that time has met and defeated such men as Billy Woods, Bobby Dobbs, Frank McConnell, Sailor Fontise, Joe Walcott, Joe Grim, Dave Hall, Larry Temple, Young Peter Jackson and drew with "Philadelphia Jack O'Brien." Then he beat Larry Temple, George Cail, Black Bill, Andy Walsh, Sailor Birmingham, Battling Johnson, Kid Williams, Mickey McDonough and Jim Savage.

His work during the past few months has caused a sensation around New York City, and many good judges there are confident that Langford will be unable to stop him to-night.

The excellence of the preliminaries has added interest to the show. The rival South Boston gamecocks, Mike Mella and Angus McDougall, will initiate the fun, followed by Dummy West and Frank O'Hara. The latter comes from Lowell, where he is favorably known, and will give a good account of himself.

Everyone is looking for a royal treat when Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury again faces Otto Mantell of Pawtucket. Their last meeting was one of the most sensational ever seen in this city. The members are evidently awake to the prospects of a splendid entertainment, and a full attendance seems assured.

SOLDIERS PREPARING FOR FOOTBALL GAMES

Preparations are being made by the soldiers at the forts in Boston harbor for the coming football season. During the present week all the teams will be rounding out for the first match of the season. As yet, none of the teams have arranged their schedule.

Fort Revere is the first in the field with a challenge. Games are wanted with any team in Greater Boston. Address Sergt. White, Fort Revere. During the first week scrub games have been played and the men have performed up to expectations. The team this season is heavier than in past years.

It is doubtful if football will be played at Fort Banks this season, owing to lack of playing space and a lack of interest on the part of the men. Lieut. Kimberly will have charge of the Fort Warren team, and has had candidates out for preliminary practice.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. The AMERICAN has quantity and quality.

KETCHEL USES UP THREE FIGHTERS IN TRAINING

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—When Willus Britt promised that things would "hum" when Stanley Ketchel began training at Millet's he evidently knew whereof he promised. Ketchel setto with three separate sparring partners yesterday, while the biggest week-day crowd that was ever seen at the roadside quarters looked on. The names of Ketchel's victims are Steve O'Connor, Dick Eilers, the Montana cyclone, and Charley Miller, the human punching bag. Each of these men went two rounds, or rather entered on a second round and each in turn was knocked cold. The boxing terminated an hour's exercise and the visitors came away proclaiming Ketchel a grand entertainer.

Knocking out his henchmen will probably be a favorite thing with Ketchel from now on. He believes that his chances of overpowering Johnson will improve as he cultivates fierceness. It is possible that the personnel of his sparring staff will change some, but Big Miller for one will not be turned away by hard knocks. Miller likes being hammered as a cat likes fish.

Ketchel did road work and plenty of it in the morning. In the afternoon prior to running amuck among his assistants, he played handball, punched the bag, buffeted the sand bag and did a lot of shadow work.

Jack Johnson started out with road work in the morning and in the afternoon worked before a packed pavilion out at the beach. His sparring consisted of four lively rounds with Dave Mills.

Unequal Matches Recalled.

The disparity in size between Johnson and Ketchel is causing instances of unequal matches in the past to be recalled. Some of those who were discussing things along these lines hark back to Tom Sayers, the British champion, and John C. Heenan, the Benicia Boy, who were as ill-sorted a pair probably as ever contested the championship of the world. There has been some queer pairing when world's champions were not involved. Here in San Francisco, about twenty years ago, we saw Big Joe McAuliffe, who stood six feet four, and weighed far above 200 pounds, in action with Frank Glover of Chicago, whose height was barely five feet eight, and who scaled around 160 pounds.

When Jim Corbett and Fitzsimmons met at Carson it was a case of a heavyweight champion and a middleweight champion trying conclusions. At that Corbett, whose height was six feet one, was only an inch and a quarter taller than Fitzsimmons. Corbett, who weighed about 185, was probably twenty pounds heavier than his opponent.

How Jeff and Sharkey Fought.

The greatest contrast in bulk and statue in a world's championship fight was when Jim Jeffries and Tom Sharkey were the principals. The contest took place at Coney Island. Jeff stood six feet one and a half to Sharkey's five feet eight and a half inches. As near as could be judged Jeff weighed 225 pounds and Sharkey 175.

Comparing the Johnson-Ketchel with the Jeffries-Sharkey contest the principals do not seem to be so badly matched. Johnson stands six feet and a quarter of an inch, Ketchel five feet nine and three-quarters, or two and a half inches less. Johnson declares he will weigh not more than 192 pounds when he enters the ring. Willus Britt says Ketchel will scale not less than 172, so on paper it does not seem such a terribly one-sided contest.

BATES SENDING FAST TEAM TO PLAY HARVARD

The Bates football team will engage only in light practice to-day before their trip to Cambridge. Marked improvement is shown in the offensive work of the team and the backs are working together well. They are said to be the fastest Bates has ever had. They block hard and show wonderful improvement in their interference. Keaney, who distinguished himself on last year's team, is doing great work. Bates has never had his peer at punting or drop kicking. Captain Cummings has also improved greatly over last year.

The coaches are much pleased with the progress made during the last few days and expect to send an unusually strong team against Harvard to-morrow.

Out at Harvard the supporters of the eleven are delighted to hear that McKay and Fisher will be eligible to play this season. They passed off their conditions all right, and now all that remains is for the committee to declare them eligible, which is more a formality than anything else. The only other member of the squad who was on the ragged edge was H. A. Rogers, who failed to get off his conditions, and will be ineligible.

The work of the varsity team yesterday consisted of a fifteen-minute scrimmage with the second, in which neither scored.

Pirnie Breaks Wrist.

The first serious injury of the season occurred in the scrimmage, when Pirnie, right end on the second team, broke his wrist in two places. He will be unable to play again this season. H. C. Leslie was obliged to retire after the first play on account of a kick in his head, but soon recovered. Dunlap got a knock on the shoulder that took him out of the game also, but which was not at all serious.

Mr. Garcelon has anounced that Hatherly Foster, '07, captain of the 1906 team, would have charge of the second team's development this Fall, and would be assisted and advised by Fisher Nesmith, last year's coach, when he is able to do so. Foster's assistants will be Roger Derby, Vic Kennard and Fulton Cutting, all of whom have been with the team since the beginning of practice.

Another addition to the coaching staff of the varsity squad was made, when Daniel Knowlton, '04, end on Hurley's second team in 1905 and acting captain in the Yale game of the same year, appeared to coach the linesmen in place of Crawford Blagden. Blagden will be away for a few weeks, but will return to finish out the season later.

Gil Browne was out again yesterday, after several days' lay-off, but did not take part in the scrimmage. He may be in shape for the game to-morrow, however.

WILLOUGHBY TO WRESTLE FRANZ

There will be some lively doings at the Columbia Wednesday night if all that is said about Joe Franz, the Western grappler, is true, for he comes here heralded as one tough boy when he gets on the mat.

Franz has been up against some of the slickest wrestlers in the game and has yet to find his equal at his weight, although he has been toppled over by men far heavier than himself. He is something after the style of Young Strangler Lewis, but far more aggressive, and can stand an awful amount of gruelling. Some of his recent victories, however, have been scored against men weighing from thirty to thirty-five pounds more than himself.

At the Columbia he meets Willoughby, whose abilities are well known to Boston sporting fans, and who is going better than ever this year. Willoughby expects to take some of the conceit out of Franz and will go in to win in short order. He does not underestimate the abilities of Franz, in the least, and knows that he will have to extend himself if he wishes to sustain the enviable reputation he made in this city last winter.

BENEFIT CRICKET MATCH.

Twenty-five years of service at the Longwood Cricket Club will be marked on Saturday, October 9, by the annual cricket match for the benefit of Chambers, the club's professional.

STRAIGHT DOPE FOR SPORT FANS

ABOUT TY COBB AND HIS SPIKES, for the Georgia Peach will be here this week and I want you to think over a few things before you try to slide him off the earth if he happens to scratch one of the local heroes. Ty Cobb is one of the fastest base runners in the game and always makes his slide feet first. Every player knows this and when they try to block him off a bag and get spiked, whose fault is it? The man guarding the bag is taking the chance when he gets between Cobb and the base, and it is up to him to protect himself or take the consequences. It isn't the base runner's duty to slide around the man waiting for him. I don't believe Cobb ever spiked a player intentionally or that he is any more careless than anyone else with his spikes, yet every time he scratches another player, the fans yell their heads off, and in nine cases out of ten it's the fault of the other man. They all play harder against Cobb than they do against other runners, for it adds a little to their reps when they can nail him. This is not intended for a defense of Cobb, and I know a lot of you won't like it, but it is straight dope just the same. I know it's hard work for a fan to be fair, but if you can't be fair, be as fair as you can.

P. C. T. BOSTON—A LETTER ADdressed to Bud Fisher, care of this office, will reach the artist who makes the pictures of our old friend Mutt.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
I understand that Eddie Carr and Johnny Lynch are to box for the featherweight championship of New England, but the winner will have to defeat George Alger before he can make such a claim, as Alger is ready to meet any legitimate featherweight in New England.
BOB WARNER.

For Bobby Wilson and George Alger.

I hadn't learned that Carr and Lynch were to settle the title between them, and I agree with you that they will have to take Alger into consideration before they get it nailed down. All three are good boys, and there are a number of other good boys who will have something to say about it.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—The Fenwood A. C. of Roxbury are out with a challenge to fight any 100-pound team in the State. The team closed last season with seven victories, one tie game and no defeats. Address J. H. Grady, 474 Brookline avenue, Roxbury.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—I am a constant reader of your column and find it most interesting, but in regards to Johnson as the heavyweight champion he is the biggest lemon that ever happened. It's lucky for him he is a colored man. If he had been white he would have been licked five years ago by Jeffries. The negro's showing against O'Brien compared with Ketchel makes me think that the short end ain't a bad bet. I think Langford is a great fighter and ought to be given another fight with Johnson if Lil' Arthur don't get his October 12.
S. J. A.
Lynn.

You're a bad dopester when you figure that Johnson is a big lemon. Take it from me that he's one of the greatest defensive fighters of modern times, and while I do not believe he has any punch to speak of, it will take a better man than Stanley Ketchel to put him away. Jeff may do it if he gets into condition, and if they ever fight and a few more ifs.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
In an argument on the new rule regarding the forward pass, A says that if the player who is supposed to get the ball, fumbles it, he may kick it once, providing no other player has touched it. B says he cannot kick the ball. You will greatly oblige if you will answer in your column.
C. F. T.

A is right, according to the new interpretation of the rules.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—In your column lately there have appeared many times over challenges issued by football teams, who, when issuing their challenges, never forget to state that they are in some formal way the champions. Now I wish to state that there is but one team that has the right to call themselves the champions, and that team is the Harlow A. A. of Dorchester.

Last season we played eighteen games, and out of that number we suffered but one defeat. Do you not think that by this record we have a right to call ourselves the champs? You may say that the team that defeated us are rightfully the champions. True, but in comparing our record with theirs ours is by far a more brilliant one.

I wish to thank you kindly for the space you have allotted us, and in closing will say that anything you can say on the matter as to the championship will be highly appreciated and taken for authority. I also wish to say that we are ready to meet all teams in New England playing football. Our average weight is 135 pounds, but weight is immaterial to us. The challenge is open, as said before, to all teams playing football. Respectfully yours,
CHARLES W. BORIS.
No. 476 Quincy street, Dorchester.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Dear Sir—Will you kindly put the following in your column?
The Mattapan Second would like to play away from home any fast sixteen-year-old basketball teams in the State for Saturday nights, beginning October 18. WILLIAM DUFFY.
No. 15 Rockville street, Mattapan, Mass.

W. H. B., SHREWSBURY, MASS.—According to the present plans the Red Sox and Detroit will play a double-header in Boston next Wednesday, September 29.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Will you please tell me if little Jeff is any relation to A. Mutt? And oblige,
S. FLATS HOLLAND.
400 Saratoga street, East Boston.

Mutt and Jeff are not related. Jeff was a sheet writer for Mutt when the popular plunger was a prosperous bookmaker on the Coast, and never got out of the habit of doing what Mutt told him to. Before that Jeff got his mail in a foolish house.

Straight Dope, Boston American:
Please inform me through "Straight Dope" what has become of Kid Burns, the old time fighter of Somerville. A. C. MACK.

You go too far back for me, as I've only been interested in the boxing game for a quarter of a century. I'll put this up to Dinny Murphy. He'll know.

FAVOR SOCCER BALL.

A meeting of Boston High an' elementary athletic supervisors, held at the School Committee rooms on Mason street to promote interest in soccer football among the grammar schools, proved many sub-masters in favor of the new idea, because the boys are not allowed to participate in football until they reach high school or play on independent teams.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. The AMERICAN has quantity and quality.

PITTSBURG IS HONORING ITS GREAT LEADER

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 28.—To-day is Fred Clarke day and all fandom will be at the ball grounds to pay homage to the Pirates' great leader.

Incidentally, the third game of the New York series will be played, but before it starts there will be doings to demonstrate that the city of Pittsburg thinks pretty well of the man to whom so much of the credit belongs for its great ball teams in the past ten years.

Clarke is a modest man. Instead of hunting the limelight he has attended strictly to business, giving all the credit for success to his players and taking all the blame for their failures. He started his career here with the motto "Get results," and was noted as one of the most aggressive men in the game. He has not lost a bit of his energy, but has progressed in managerial ability until now his methods are rated as the very best. Clarke in the days when all players argued that there was not such a thing as a good umpire was by no means easy with the referees, but for the past two or three years no manager has given the umpires less trouble.

It is because the Pittsburg team, under Clarke's directions, has not resorted to any tricks and has employed nothing but sportsmanlike methods this year, that its success is so popular all over the country.

The New York series will close Friday and that evening the team will go to Chicago to play three games with the Cubs Saturday, Sunday and Monday. This series will rank pretty close to the world's championship in the point of interest and many persons are going to take advantage of the excursion to go to Chicago to see the final battles between the bitter rivals. Chicago cannot win the series from Pittsburg this year, but if it should take all three games it would make a good showing against the coming champions, as the record would then stand ten victories for Chicago and twelve for Pittsburg.

CHAMBERS BENEFIT GAME.

The annual cricket match at Longwood for the benefit of "Ike" Chambers will be played Saturday, October 9, and will mark twenty-five years of service with the Longwood Cricket Club by the noted professional. A Boston team will be matched against a Massachusetts eleven, and Tom Pettitt will be captain of the former, while J. J. Heys will lead the latter. The match will begin at 10:30 a. m.

TODDS ARE FAST.

With Bob Douglass, 2:06¼, the champion five-year-old trotting stallion; Todd Mack, 2:07¾, also five; Henry Setzer (4), 2:10¾; Sir Todd, 2:11¼; Wilkerson, 2:12¼, Al Stanley (3), 2:13¼, world's champion on a half-mile track, and Sue D. (2), 2:15¼, the family of the dead sire Todd, 2:14¾, most certainly is in the limelight, and further demonstrates the severe blow that the trotting horse breeding industry received by the untimely death of that remarkable son of Bingen, 2:06¼.

BOSTON CRACK GOLF PLAYERS IN BIG MEET

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—An intercity contest will close this week, when on Friday and Saturday the teams of the New York, Boston and Pennsylvania players will be opposed on the Huntington Valley course in the annual match for the Robert W. Lesley cup.

Really, it is a match of the best golfers in many States, although referred to usually as one of the cities. This time, instead of a Philadelphia team there will be one from the new Pennsylvania Golf Association, which lets in the Pittsburg group, the other teams hailing, as usual, from the Massachusetts Golf Association and the Metropolitan Golf Association.

The entries for the woman's national championship at the Merion Cricket Club Oct. 4 to 9 closes to-day with R. C. Watson, secretary of the United States Golf Association. Foreign entries expected are Miss Dorothy Campbell, British champion, Miss Leacher, Miss Temple and Miss Spurling of Scotland.

If it fills, there will be a match at Merion on Saturday between the women's teams of the East and West; on Wednesday will be held the seniors' tournament at the Apawamis Club.

Among the widely known men who will tee up to-morrow are Ex-Gov. John W. Griggs of New Jersey, Gen. Anson G. McCook of New York, Frederick A. Chase of Providence, the Rev. Dr. A. P. Atterbury of New York, Capt. Hugh H. Johnson of Fort Worth, Tex., Spencer Borden of Fall River, John B. McDonald, the New York contractor, Robert G. Shaw of Boston, Gen. Adelbert Ames of Lowell and R. H. Thomas, president of the New York Stock Exchange.

HOLMAN TO COACH NEWTON

Athletic teams at the Newton High School will hereafter be coached by Wendall P. Holman, who has been chosen to take charge of the football, baseball and track teams. He will also be a member of the school faculty and assist Dr. Brown, the physical director, in gymnastics. Holman is a graduate of Bates College, where he played four years upon the football team and earned laurels as a baseball and track man. At present the football team is being coached by Lawrence Riley, the former Holy Cross and Fordham College star. He was engaged temporarily and will finish his duties this week.

In Buffalo the scribes are trying to figure out why the team did not win the Eastern League pennant this year. President Potter has announced that there will be a general reorganization for next season.

'THE BOY MATTY' 18 YEARS OLD, WON 54 GAMES

"The Boy Matty" they called him up in his home town in the Connecticut River Valley, and the three-year pitching record of Talbot Forbes, until his graduation last June captain of the Greenfield high school baseball team, seems to warrant the nickname.

Not yet eighteen years old, Forbes has pitched seventy-eight games since he "made" the high school team in his sophomore year. Of these he has won fifty-four and lost fifteen. The remaining nine games went to extra innings and resulted in ties.

The proudest moment of the boy pitcher's career came this year at Brant Rock, where he pitched a fourteen-inning game against a team composed of Harvard University men representing the town of Scituate. Brant Rock won by a score of 1 to 0 after Forbes had held down the collegians to one hit. The boy seems not to have acquired a "swelled head" as a result of his phenomenal pitching ability, and ascribed his victory against men ten years older than himself to the catching of "a fellow that used to catch Reulbach for three years on the Chicago Nationals."

"Any dub could pitch good ball with a man like that behind the bat," was the way Forbes put it.

Scouts from Bowdoin, Amherst and Dartmouth Colleges have been after the boy for two years now trying to persuade him to enter their respective universities. But Forbes hasn't listened to any of them. It is his ambition to get to the Naval Academy, and he is going to wait until 1911, when the next appointments from his district are to be made, before making his debut as a college pitcher.

That the only half-developed boy has been able to keep up his surprising record in the box is the more surprising when it is learned that in one week he was obliged to pitch four games, the first one of which went eleven innings.

"I was pounded all over the lot in the fourth game," young Forbes confessed sadly. "But, gee, I was all in and could hardly get the ball to the plate."

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Bob Fitzsimmons sails to-day for London, where he will meet Hugh McIntosh and Jimmy Britt. The trio will sail for Australia on October 1, where Fitz will meet Bill Squires and Bill Lang. Harry Fenn, the lightweight, is already on his way to the Antipodes.

The Johnson-Kaufman fight was first reported to have drawn $11,000, but the correct receipts were $7,000. Johnson received forty per cent. and Kaufman twenty-five.

* * *

Guess there is some class about this fellow, Charley Harvey. He has just been appointed American representative of the Wonderland Francais, the swellest boxing club in Paris. Some name that club's got. He says he is prepared to offer good inducements to all the good middleweights and heavyweights hereabouts, providing, of course, they are willing to take changes at getting seasick on the way across the big wet way.

* * *

It seems queer that Governor Hughes will let boxing bouts run right under his nose in Albany, Syracuse and other upstate cities, and yet won't let the game continue in New York, where it has been conducted in proper fashion.

* * *

Biz Mackey has signed articles to meet Benny Kaufman before the Douglas A. C., of Philadelphia, next Friday night. He says that the Philadelphia papers gave him a raw deal in his bout with Yankee Schwartz, as even the club president said he was entitled to the award.

Mackey has also been matched to meet Young Lenny before the Eureka A. C., of Baltimore, in a fifteen-round bout some time next month.

* * *

Young Kloby, the New England fighter, who has not been doing much in the game lately, has agreed to meet Bobby Wilson, the Canadian lightweight, before the United A. C., of Lawrence, Mass., next Thursday night.

BIG COLLEGES IN LINE FOR FIRST GAMES

Development of the leading football teams of the country has now reached a stage of advancement where the coaches that have the fortunes in hand know pretty nearly what is the calibre of the material they have in hand out of which to mould winning elevens.

Naturally the chief interest is centred in the fortunes of the so-called "Big Six," which includes Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Princeton, Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania.

The candidates for all these teams have now been at work for a week or more and one has played its initial game of the season. All of the others will get under way this week, Harvard meeting Bates on Wednesday and Bowdoin on Saturday, Yale will play Wesleyan in the mid-week game and Syracuse Saturday. Dartmouth also opens up the season Wednesday with the Massachusetts Aggies.

Princeton and Cornell do not fall into line until Saturday, when the Orange and Black eleven will entertain Stevens and the Ithacans will line up against Rensselaer. Pennsylvania, which last Saturday set the ball rolling by downing Gettysburg, 20 to 0, also has two games scheduled for this week.

West Point and the Navy, two more great elevens, which might almost be classed with the "Big Six," are also well under way. The soldiers have a game with Tufts on Saturday. Annapolis does not open its season until October 5.

From what can be judged by the early practice, Harvard and Yale are better off in material for the coming campaign than Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth and University of Pennsylvania. The latter lost valuable material last June by graduation and the coaches will have no little worry in finding among the new candidates men to take their places.

YOUNG CORBETT AT ARMORY A. A.

The Armory Athletic Club has secured as an attraction next week Young Corbett, the conqueror of Terry McGovern, and Dave Deshler of Cambridge.

Those who witnessed Corbett's contests, when he was the undisputed champion in his class, have been greatly interested in his endeavor to again climb to the top of the pugilistic ladder.

Corbett always gave the spectators who gazed upon his work a run, and as Deshler is an energetic lad who loves to work on the aggressive, the event ought to be replete with plenty of hard work. It is matches of this kind that appeal, not the fancy sparring events that leaves but little trace of boxing after the show is over. Several star preliminaries are being arranged.

ANDOVER MUST IMPROVE GAME

Looking at the result of the games in which Exeter and Andover, the two rival academies, participated on Saturday, the outlook for Andover does not appear very promising, but things are likely to take a brace. Cushing Academy beat Andover by the score of 8 to 0, but Cushing has a mighty fast eleven this Fall and will make more than Andover sit up and take notice.

Andover will be heard from before the season is past, as with such men as Captain Large and Bib Porter in harness there is bound to be something doing. Exeter had good luck with Brewster Academy, winning by the score of 40 to 0. The Boston boys on the team did very well and it looks as if at least five of them will hold down permanent positions on the eleven.

Exeter has a fast and heavy eleven and with Johnny Glaze coaching some fine football will be set up by the New Hampshire eleven. In Saturday's game the defence was faultless and the offence was a revelation, even more than was expected.

CARR FIGHTS LYNCH NEXT THURSDAY EVE

The date of the match between Eddie Carr of South Boston and Johnny Lynch of Cambridge for the featherweight championship of New England has been changed by the directors of the Gladstone A. C. of Lowell. The boys will meet at that club next Thursday night, September 30, instead of the original date, October 5.

Both are now in good condition for the bout and each is confident that he will win the decision. Carr is training in South Boston under the watchful eyes of Joe McCarthy, and Joe reports him in the best of condition. Lynch is training at his private gymnasium in East Cambridge.

BROOKLINE HIGH MEET.

The sophomore and freshmen classes of Brookline high school will hold a dual track meet upon the Brookline Common Wednesday, Oct. 6.

FOOTBALL GRIDIRON NOTES

Penn. State has started its practice with sixty candidates out for the team. Bill Hollenback, the former crack Pennsylvania fullback, is in charge, and is assisted by two Penn. State grads.

Athletics is to be boomed among the marines in Washington and the talk is now to have the annual Army-Navy football contest played each year in the nation's capital.

* * *

Francis Geary, the Worcester boy, who has figured in the annual track meets of the Springfield diocese in this section and demonstrated no mean ability in the sprints, is spoken of as one of the best men on the Fordham squad this year. Geary was at Holy Cross for a time.

* * *

Coach Crolius of Villanova is a beautiful example of the driving kind of coach. Three stiff hours of practice without a let up and a mile run thrown in, soon gives him an idea of how much his men can stand. This may be one reason why Villanova has been turning out such good teams in recent years.

* * *

Early experiments with the onside kick at Princeton have not yet revealed much, most of the kicks being decidedly uncertain. Old grads coming into the town for the opening of the college have been united in their expressions of approval of the general huskiness of the squad and its apparent good condition.

* * *

Pop Warner, a brother of Glenn Warner, the Carlisle coach, and who spent several seasons coaching teams in the East, is now the football mentor at St. Louis university. Warner has very mediocre material and if a good team is to be developed it must be through his coaching.

* * *

The Pennsylvania 'varsity has been given its first real scrimmage of the year with the result that four touchdowns were scored against the scrubs. The principal result of the work was the testing of the blackfield and two sets of backs were tried out with indifferent success. Captain Miller made the first touchdown of the season.

* * *

Minot, the present choice for fullback on the Crimson eleven, is an impressive player. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs nearly 200 pounds. For one so heavy he is remarkably fast on his feet and a regular bull for bucking the line. Last year's team was particularly strong in defense yet Minot was able to score touchdown after touchdown almost unaided when playing with the ...

THEY TRY---WE DO!

Everybody tries at times to do things right. Tailors try to make good looking clothes, but it takes something more than mere trying. "KNOW-HOW" is what makes the NEWMAN-made classy clothes look so well. Others will do one or two things well and fall down completely on some of the essential points in tailoring. There's nothing left undone in a Newman-made suit or overcoat. The COLLARS HUG THE NECK, there are hand-felled edge stays, the coat fronts are flexible and unbreakable, all hand-worked so they WILL NOT CURL. In fact the HAND-WORK of the skilled journeyman tailor make the Newman $20 garment so classy that others find it difficult to duplicate at $30.

Women With Ways

We Have All Been Bulldozed by People with "Ways"

By DOROTHY DIX.

IT seems to me that the human nature is never so near sanctification and downright imbecility as when we excuse some perfectly inexcusable thing by saying: "Oh, well, it is just her way."

The very phrase has become a kind of barricade behind which the guerrillas of society hide while they bombard a defenseless world with their ill-natured malignity and selfishness and general disagreeableness.

That is strange enough, goodness knows, but not half so strange as that the excuse should pass as valid. Nobody calls them down and demands to know what right they have got to have "ways," anyway. Instead, we meekly submit while they go walking rough-shod over our pet susceptibilities and making a doormat out of our tenderest feelings.

The worst thing about the woman with "ways" is her goodness. That's her cleverness, and where she gets in her work. You could protect yourself against her if she were only bad, but you can't quarantine against a person possessed of all the cardinal virtues simply because she happens to be as irritating as a blister.

Yet the thoroughgoing selfishness and unintentional cruelties a woman with "ways" will inflict on her fell creatures would make a hardened criminal turn pale and shudder with horror.

One of the chief offenders among the women with "ways" is the woman who is always bound to have everything. Of course, with any one else it would be the most palpable selfishness, but we excuse it in her as being her peculiar "way."

Then there is the woman who professes to be our friend. She is a good woman, and of course we know she doesn't mean anything unkind. It is just her "way" that makes her say when we meet, "Why, what in the world is the matter with you? You look as sallow as a pumpkin. Have you seen the doctor? You are perfectly ghastly. Perhaps, though, it is that dress. Green is so trying to people with poor complexions," and so on and on, every word a stab in our pleasure in our new things.

You can't resent it. You must smile and keep her on your visiting list, simply because nobody has yet had the courage to organize an effectual boycott against a woman with "ways."

Another woman with "ways," who is a terror and a nuisance, is the one who can't refrain from giving you advice. It's all very well for her to say that she has your good at heart and is only moved by affection to try to put her finger in your pie. It's wearing, nevertheless, and moreover you don't want it.

The minute she takes a seat in your house you can feel her eyes boring into everything, spying out the spots on the carpet and the dust under the sofa.

"What," she cries, "don't you take up your carpets in the Summer? Of all the thriftless, extravagant waste—goodness gracious, look at the way that child is eating! Do you mean to say, Maria, that you let a child that is not yet six years old eat figs?

"It does beat all that the Lord will send children to people who haven't got enough sense to—good lands! Is that your husband smoking in the parlor? Don't you know it will ruin the curtains?" etc., etc.

And it doesn't once occur to her that she is gratuitously meddling with what doesn't concern her. Oh, dear, no. She expects such impertinent interference to be excused on the ground of its being her "way."

Then, there's your mother-in-law's "way." You want to be friends with her, and you appreciate all her good points. When she is about a thousand miles off, so you can get a good focus on her virtues, so to speak, you can give her the credit that is due her. You could even love her at closer range if it wasn't for her "ways."

But why, you ask yourself, should she always speak of your husband as "poor John" and treat him with a pitying tenderness as of one who is afflicted beyond his deserts? She is always bemoaning that he, too, has to work so hard, and she looks volumes when you buy a new frock and makes you feel you have done a mean thing in taking a poor, unsuspecting man and marrying him and making a slave of him.

Of course, she doesn't mean it all. It's just her "way," and there isn't any offence set down in the criminal code you couldn't forgive easier.

There are women who apologize for continued fretting by saying it is their "way." Nothing ever suits them, and they keep their houses and their families in a continual state of turmoil, and there is no peace and rest for the afflicted who are bound to live with them.

It must require a mental effort for many a man to be able to recall his wife's good qualities, they are so snowed-under by her "ways." He knows that she is true and kind, and loyal and generous-hearted, and he appreciates it when he can get far enough out of earshot to miss her querulous fault-finding with the children, and her nagging at the servants and the dressmaker, and the garbage man, but when he is with her he can be conscious of nothing but the discomfort.

It is said, as a reproach, that many a wife and mother is more appreciated after she is dead than while she lived. It is true, and it is because we do not remember the faults of the living against the dead that many a man has been able to consciously erect a reasonably veracious tombstone, and sincerely grieve for his wife, who was a continual aggravation while living.

As a matter of fact, we have all been bulldozed by people with "ways" long enough. It is time to call a halt and demand that they surrender privileges they were never entitled to. No more masquerading under false pretenses. If they want to be disagreeable and selfish, and overbearing and impertinent, let them be shown up in their true colors.

It is no excuse to say it is their "way." They haven't any right to any such a way. There are other ways. There are ways of gentle courtesy and forbearance and tenderness and consideration for others. These are the only ways for which there is room. The other ways must go.

At What Age Should a Man Marry? By Beatrice Fairfax

FIVE out of ten women marry too young, and nine out of ten men marry too young.

As soon as a young man's salary gets to be $15 a week he throws out his chest, holds his head high and says to himself: "It is time I married."

So pleased with himself is the budding Croesus that he becomes an easy prey for Cupid, and the first thing he knows he has married a wife and assumed the responsibilities of a household.

The responsibilities and expenses increase more quickly than the salary, and just about the time when he should be thinking of marriage he finds himself saddled with a load of debt.

The young man about to marry should bear in mind that his career and the money he earns are the most important and cherished things in the world to him, and he needs to love a girl very sincerely before he contemplates sharing both with her for the rest of their natural lives.

Love Must Be Strongest

His love for her must be the strongest thing in his nature or he will not willingly work for her. He should not marry until he is old enough to discriminate between love and infatuation. But he must not wait until he is too old or he will be still less able to discriminate than when too young. There is no more painful sight than that of a foolish old man trying to keep pace with a gay young wife.

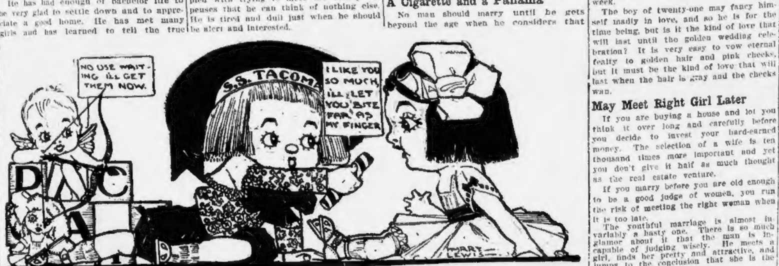

So, young man, you must not marry too young, but neither must you wait until you are too old. Stand between the scales and marry when they dip to neither side, but remain even.

From twenty-eight to forty-two is a good age to marry, and of all the ages between these two, thirty is the ideal one. If a man can ever afford to marry he can do so at that age, and the chances are that he will have saved a snug sum in case of emergency.

He has had enough of bachelor life to be very glad to settle down and to appreciate a good home. He has met many girls and has learned to tell the true from the false. Being a man, he loves a pretty face, but he knows that other qualities are necessary in a good wife.

He is not old enough to have developed into a cranky old bachelor, nor so young that he falls in love with every pretty face he sees.

The man who marries too young is engrossed by care just at the time when he should be developing the qualities which will make a man of him. He is so occupied with trying to meet the family expenses that he can think of nothing else. He is tired and dull just when he should be alert and interested.

Children are an easy prey for Cupid.

Just think it over, young man, and you will see how absurd it is that you should marry too young. When you choose a wife you expect to find one who is the very flower of girlhood; you want one who is at her very best. She does not want a green boy for a husband; she wants a man whose wisdom and justice she can implicitly trust.

To thoroughly love a man a woman must look up to him.

A Cigarette and a Panama

No man should marry until he gets beyond the age when he considers that a cigarette and a battered Panama hat make him a man of the world. Neither should he marry if he is already spending every cent of his salary on himself. If he can't save a little it is folly to expect to support two on the money that is barely sufficient to support one.

Be very sure that you are ready to spend your evenings at home before you ask a girl to marry you. Also be very, very sure that you can cheerfully hand over the greater part of your salary every week.

The boy of twenty-one may fancy himself madly in love, and so he is for the time being, but is it the kind of love that will last until the golden wedding celebration? It is very easy to vow eternal fealty to golden hair and pink cheeks, but it must be the kind of love that will last when the hair is gray and the cheeks wan.

May Meet Right Girl Later

If you are buying a house and lot you think it over long and carefully before you decide to invest your hard-earned money. The selection of a wife is ten thousand times more important and yet you don't give it half as much thought as the real estate venture.

If you marry before you are old enough to be a good judge of women, you run the risk of meeting the right woman when it is too late.

The youthful marriage is almost invariably a hasty one. There is so much glamor about it that the man is incapable of judging wisely. He meets a girl, finds her pretty and attractive, and jumps to the conclusion that she is the one girl for him.

Five years later he meets the woman who is really fitted to be his mate.

Every man should marry; old bachelors are cumberers of the earth, but every man should wait until he is at his best before he asks a woman to share his life.

Fog Horn Tales

The Wonderful Voyage of the Good Ship Lizzie

By HANK

"I WISH this fog would clear off so we could see the foreign warships," said the Pilot to Captain Pinochle as they sat and smoked in the lighthouse while the "who-o-o" of the automatic fog-horn hooted at intervals.

"Ach!" exclaimed Captain Pinochle, "vat you care for warships. Vot goot are dey? Dey smoke and look grand and make a lot of noise and when der time comes for dem to do anytings dey just sink, dot's all.

"Dis is the age of nottings but foolishness," said the Captain, who would not be appeased. "The only speedy ting dot I see nowadays is der way your money goes."

"Who-o-o" blew the foghorn just then, and the pair smoked in silence for awhile.

Eighty Knots an Hour

"All the same," observed the Pilot determined to take a "fall" out of the Captain, "if you had been able to go twenty-three knots an hour with one of your old sailing tubs you'd have been glad."

"Twenty-dree knots!" exclaimed the Captain. "Vot is twenty-dree knots compared to eighty knots—eighty knots an hour, vot?"

"Eighty knots!" ejaculated the Pilot. "No ship in the world ever did that. What are you giving me?"

"I'm giffing you der truth!" shouted the Captain. "Just because you are a pilot don't tink you know efferytings. Vait 'til you are a Captain."

"Huh," sneered the Pilot, "your're only a fog-horn captain."

"Iss dot so," said the Captain becoming excited, "vell I vass not always so und you know it. Besides any kind vot a Captain I am iss better den a pilot. Pilots are nottings but——"

"Who-o-o," blew the fog horn, forcing the Captain to subside.

"Don't get mad," said the Pilot. "Let's hear of this wonderful eighty-knot ship.

"Vell," said the Captain, "I was in command of der schooner Lizzie, vich vass bound oud from New York to Liverpool vid a cargo of peanuts. Ve vass due in Liverpool on a Tuesday, but, ach! dot vind it had gone somvere else and ve made no progress at all.

"Ve drifted and drifted for days and days until I thought ve neffer vould have a breeze again. By an' by it got to be Tuesday der day vot ve vere supposed to arrive in Liverpool, and I vass so sick I could haff jumped overboard."

"A Captain sea-sick?" exclaimed the Pilot in surprise.

"Not sea-sick, you dodderhead!" shouted the Captain. "Sick in der head because dere vass no vind. Me sea-sick, you chump! Vy, I haff a goot mind to knock your head off you——"

A Wonderful Voyage

"Who-o-," blew the fog horn.

"Go on," said the Pilot, "I apologize."

"Vell," said the Captain, somewhat calmed, "all of a sudden a liddle, vee bit of a cloud comes up on the horizon and a few minutes later it hit us vid all our sails up. Whee! It blew just like dot fog horn, and in a minute ve vass going so fast dot no one could stand on der decks. Ve should have pulled down der sails, but it meant death to any one who went on deck, so ve stayed down below looking out of der port hole vile dot ship speeded through the water so fast dot we passed nineteen steamships and left dem far behind.

"It vass hours and hours before der vind died down and when I went on der deck I gave a cheer. Dere vass Liverpool right in front of us and ve had arrived dere vun day before our time."

"You mean you got there on Monday?" asked the Pilot.

"Dot is right," said the Captain, "ve had sailed more den eighty knots an hour. I figured it all oud."

"But you said you were becalmed until Tuesday," insisted the Pilot. "How could you have reached Liverpool the day before you started?"

"Because ve went so fast ve caught up wid Monday and passed it in mid-ocean," shouted the Captain, "and if you don't beliff it you can——"

"Who-o-o!" blew the fog horn.

The Ship of Life

By WILL ARTHUR COLLINS

THE Ship of Childhood gayly sailed
Upon Life's stormy sea;
Tempation's waves dashed o'er her side,
But soon passed to her lee.
For at the helm stood Honor,
And by his side stood Truth,
And soon the ship they piloted
Into the Bay of Youth.
They steered her through its channels
Without a spar the less,
Until at last she reached her port—
The old Port of Success.

The Perfume of the Lady in Black

A Thrilling, Absorbing Story by the Author of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room"

By GASTON LEROUX.

(Copyright, 1909, by Brentano's.)

"DOUBTLESS," replied Rouletabille, who had taken the hand of the Lady in Black in both his own as though he wished to give her courage, "he must have believed that it was yourself."

"That then explains the fact that when I reached my door I had only to push it open. Pere Bernier believed that I was within."

"Exactly; that is good reasoning!" declared Rouletabille. "And Pere Bernier, who had opened to Darzac No. 1, had not troubled himself about No. 2, since he did not see him any more than yourself. You certainly reached the Square Tower at the moment that Sainclair and myself called Bernier to the parapet to see whether he could help us in understanding the strange gesticulations of Old Bob, talking at the threshold of the Barma Grande to Mrs. Rance and Prince Galitch."

"But Pere Bernier!" cried M. Darzac. "She had gone into her lodge. Was she not astonished to see M. Darzac come in a second time when she had not seen him go out?"

"Let us suppose," replied the young reporter with a sad smile; "let us suppose, M. Darzac, that Pere Bernier at that moment—the moment when you passed into your apartments—that is to say, when the second apparition of Darzac passed in—was occupied in picking up the potatoes and putting them back into the sack which I had emptied upon her floor—and we shall suppose the truth."

"Well, then, I can congratulate myself on the fact that I am still upon earth!"

"Congratulate yourself, M. Darzac? congratulate yourself?"

"When I remember that as soon as I entered my room, I drew the bolts as I have told you that I did, that I began to work and that this wretch was hidden behind my back. Why, he might have killed me without hindrance!"

Rouletabille stepped close to M. Darzac and fixed his eyes upon him with a look that seemed to read his soul.

"Why did he not kill you then?" he asked.

"You know very well that he was waiting for someone else," replied M. Darzac, turning his face sorrowfully toward the Lady in Black.

Rouletabille was now so close to M. Darzac that their shadows on the floor looked like that of one strangely formed being. The lad put his two hands on the older man's shoulders.

"M. Darzac," he said, his voice again clear and strong, "I have a confession to make to you. When I began to understand how the 'body too many' had effected an entrance and when I had discovered that you did nothing to undeceive us in regard to the hour of 5 o'clock at which we had believed—at which everyone, rather, except myself, believed—that you had entered the Square Tower, I felt that I had the right to suspect that the murderer was not the man who at 5 o'clock entered the Square Tower under the form of Darzac. I thought, on the contrary, that that Darzac might be the true Darzac and you might be the false one. Ah, my dear M. Darzac, how I have suspected you!"

"That was madness!" cried M. Darzac. "If I did not tell you the exact hour at which I entered the Square Tower it was because the time was somewhat vague in my own mind and I did not attach any importance to it."

"In such a manner, M. Darzac," continued Rouletabille, without paying any attention to the interruptions of his interlocutor, the emotion of the Lady in Black and our attitude, more than ever filled with terror. "In such a manner as that you could have stolen away the true Darzac when he came from outside and by your own carefulness and the too faithful help of the Lady in Black could have taken his place and have been perfectly able to defy detection of your audacious enterprise. This was my imagination—only my imagination, M. Darzac; don't let it disturb you. But in such a manner as this I had thought that, you being Larsan, the man who was put in the sack was Darzac. Ah! the fancies that I have had! and the useless suspicions!"

"Bah!" responded Mathilde's husband, gloomily. "We are all suspicious here!"

Rouletabille turned his back upon M. Darzac, put his hands into his pocket and said, addressing himself to Mathilde, who seemed ready to swoon before the horror of Rouletabille's imaginings:

"Courage for a little while longer, Madame!"

And he began speaking again, in his "teacher's" voice which I knew so well, and with the air of professor of mathematics propounding or resolving a theorem:

"You see, M. Darzac, there are two manifestations of Robert Darzac. To know which was the true one and which was the one which formed a disguise for Larsan—my duty, M. Darzac—that which the power of pure reason showed me—was to examine, without fear or reproach, both of these manifestations—in all impartiality. Thus, I begin with you—M. Darzac."

M. Darzac replied:

"It does not matter since you suspect me no longer. But you must tell me immediately who is Larsan. I insist upon it—I demand it!"

"We all demand it—and at once!" we all cried, turning upon both of them. Mathilde rushed up to her child and placed herself in front of him, as if to protect him. We felt the pathos of her attitude but the scene had endured too long and we were beyond the limits of patience.

"If he knows who is Larsan let him speak out and make an end of this!" exclaimed Arthur Rance.

And suddenly, just as the thought crossed my mind that I had heard the same cries of anger and impatience two years before at the Court of Assizes, another pistol shot sounded outside the door of the Square Tower, and we were all so seized with consternation that our anger fell away in a moment and we found ourselves not threatening Rouletabille but entreating him to put an end as soon as possible to this intolerable situation. At this moment, it actually seemed as though we were each imploring him to speak out, as though we calculated that by doing so, we would prove, not only to the others but to ourselves, that we were not Larsan.

As soon as the second shot was heard the countenance of Rouletabille changed completely. His face seemed transformed and his whole being appeared to vibrate with a savage energy. Laying aside the half bantering manner which he had used toward M. Darzac and which we had all found extremely disagreeable, he gently released himself from the clasp of the Lady in Black, who still clung to him, walked toward the door, folded his arms and said:

"You see, my friends, in an affair like this, it does not do to neglect any point. There were two manifestations of Robert Darzac which entered the Square Tower. There were two manifestations which came out—and one of these was in the sack! That is where one loses oneself. And even now, I do not wish to make any mistake! Will M. Darzac, here present, permit me to say that I had a hundred excuses for suspecting him?"

Then I thought to myself: "How unlucky that he did not mention his suspicions to me! I would have told him about the map of Australia!"

M. Darzac strode across the room and planted himself in front of the young reporter and said in a tone nearly inaudible from anger:

"What excuses? I ask you, what excuses?"

"You will soon understand, my friend," said the reporter with the utmost calmness. "The first thing that I said to myself while I was examining the conditions surrounding your manifestation of Larson, was this: 'Nonsense! if he were Larson, would not Professor Stangerson's daughter have perceived it?' That is self evident—the common sense of that thought—is it not? But when I tried to look into the mind of the lady who has become Mme. Darzac, I discovered beyond a doubt, Monsieur, that all the while she could not free herself from just this fear—the fear that you might be Larsan!"

Mathilde, who had fallen half fainting into a chair, gathered strength enough to start up and to protest against the words with a frightened, despairing gesture.

As for M. Darzac, his face was a picture of hopeless anguish. He sank upon a couch and said in a voice so low that it was scarcely audible and so full of wretchedness that it pierced our hearts:

"And could you have thought that, Mathilde?"

His wife dropped her eyes and spoke not a word.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

RETURN THEM BY ALL MEANS.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young man for the past two years, during which time I have received from him several articles. In the Spring of the year he accepted a position which necessitated his leaving town a greater portion of the time.

After his departure I became aware of the fact that I did not care for him enough to be his future wife, although I gave him to understand before his leaving that such were my feelings.

Now, since his arrival home, I thought it my duty to tell him just what the state of my feelings were, at which he became very must upset and has demanded the various articles he has given me, in turn sending me everything which I have given him.

Although he has at this writing sent me everything I gave him, I have as yet not returned anything to him, in fact, I did not intend to. Now do you think I should return those various presents I have received from him, in view of the fact that he has urgently requested that I do so?

R. W. B.

MOST certainly you should return them You have not treated him very well, and surely if he asks that his presents be returned you have too much pride to refuse. I should think that you would feel that you could not return them quickly enough.

BETTER BE HONEST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl eighteen years old. I have been going with a young man one year my senior for quite some time. This young man seems to think a great deal of me, in fact, even declares he loves me. I do not like him enough to warrant my keeping company with him, but I do not like to hurt his feelings in any way. I know he has many other lady friends with whom he could go, but he declares he does not care enough for them. Would you kindly advise me what to do?

M. C.

YOU had much better be honest in the matter. There would be no kindness in leading him on to think you cared when you did not. If he has other friends he will soon get over his disappointment.

Society Folk Interested in Brides-to-Be

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Society is very much interested in the engagement of Miss Mabel Mason of this city and Peyton J. Van Rensselaer of New York. Miss Mason is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert Mason (Gertrude Dana) of Beacon street and a sister of Miss Julia A. Mason. Miss Mason is a pretty girl with much vivacity and charm and is quite as much a favorite in the fashionable Lenox colony where, with her mother and sister, she spends the Summers, as in the exclusive set in town. The engagement is to be short as the wedding date has been set for October 14th, the ceremony to take place at Stockbridge.

Mr. Van Rensselaer is secretary of the Stockbridge Golf Club and a son of the late Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, a wealthy New York stock broker, who also owns a handsome estate at Stockbridge.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cronan and Miss Alice Cronan who have been spending the Summer in Europe are to return to Boston the last of October.

This is the wedding day at Flushing, L. I., of Miss Gladys Bogart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Bogart of Flushing, and Conover Fitch, son of Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch of Commonwealth avenue and Manchester. Miss Bogart is a prominent society girl, accomplished and most attractive. Mr. Fitch is a Myopia man, a crack polo player, member of the University, Puritan, Eastern Yacht, New Riding and New Algonquin Clubs. He is a graduate of Harvard University of the class of 1901.

* * *

Another wedding of interest here is that of Miss Helen Bradford Lowe, daughter of George H. Lowe of Wellesley, and Myron Lewis Crowe of Dorchester. The wedding takes place in Trinity Church this evening and the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. William H. Osmund. Miss Marian Whitney attends the bride as maid of honor, and the best man is Charles Shepard Champney. The ushers are George Hale Lowe, Jr., Roger B. Conant, J. F. Worcester, Jr., Boynton D. Crosbie, William Jarvis and Leon W. Rand.

Another wedding which will take place to-day is that of Miss Gertrude Mead and Ralph Merrill. Miss Mead is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Mead of Dorchester. The ceremony will be performed at 7:30 this evening at the home of President Hamilton of Tuft's College.

* * *

November 2 is the date set for the wedding of Miss Edith Waterman, daughter of Mrs. William B. Waterman of Providence, and Ralph S. Richmond of this city. The wedding will take place at the home of the Watermans at Providence.

* * *

The fashionables from Lenox and Stockbridge who are not in New York attended the recital given yesterday at the home of Mrs. Richard C. Greenleaf at Windyside. The artists were Miss Susan Metcalfe, soprano; Sidney Biden, baritone, and Ulysses Buhler, accompanist. More than forty men and women were present at the musicale.

* * *

Miss Anna B. Sands of this city entertained yesterday in Lenox at a luncheon and bridge whist party.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Hood of Lowell and their family have returned to their Winter home after spending the greater part of the Summer at the Oceanside in Magnolia.

* * *

The Rev. George L. Perin and family have returned to their home in Brookline after a Summer in New Hampshire.

FINE ATTRACTIONS AT LOCAL THEATRES

Keith's.

A half-dozen stellar acts and a half-dozen others that would be headliners in any other than an extraordinary week make up the bill at Keith's this week. It's a happy mixture of comedy, melody and spectacular feats with just enough of straight dramatic spicing. There are two hold-over acts, Peter, the trained monkey, and Cressy and Dayne, with a new act, but either one of them would attract crowds for a second offering. Peter continues to be the chief applause gatherer, and would continue so for a year. But this is his last week for this run here. Peter did all of his old stunts last night and rang in a few new ones. Ordered to say "Mama," he gave vent to something that was not unlike an infantile wail. Will Cressy and Blanche Dayne in their favorite sketch, "Town Hall To-night," are at their best.

The Eight Kellinos are among the best acrobats that Boston ever has seen. Tom Edwards, "English-don't-you-know," has a fine ventriloquist stunt. Paul Stevens, a pole balancer, manipulates himself with two arms and one leg. James Harrigan, the tramp juggler, hands out lively monologue while he keeps the air filled with Indian clubs and platters. Arthur Canterson, a singer of nonsense; Waterbury Brothers and Tenney, minstrel stars and the kinetograph furnish the rest of the excellent bill.

Castle Square.

The play at the Castle Square this week is well worth seeing. "Our New Minister" is one of those bright, breezy, invigorating stage productions which makes everybody who sits at a performance all the better for having done so. The final curtain brings an unfeigned feeling of regret, for the three acts are filled with genuine human sentiment and feeling faithfully portrayed by those entrusted with the several parts.

"Our New Minister" is in a class with "The Old Homestead" and "Shore Acres" in its power of arousing the best impulses and of stimulating the finest sentiments for justice and honor of which our human nature is capable. The man or woman who loathes and detests cant and hypocrisy will find much that is satisfying and reciprocative in "Our New Minister." There is not a line that leaves a bad taste in the mouth, neither is there any suggestion of the immoral or the vulgar.

The John Craig Stock Company does work in this production which is worthy of the best dramatic traditions. Every character in the caste is well placed and excellently played.

Those who want to indulge in a good, healthy opening of their tear wells, followed by some spells of laughter that will tax the elastic powers of the ribs, should spend an afternoon or an evening during the coming week with "Our New Minister" at the Castle Square.

American Music Hall.

In a program of general all-around excellence, which is hard to beat, the American Music Hall this week has put on a show that should appeal to everyone.

As the star attraction Fiske O'Hara, famous for his sweet tenor voice and his handsome presence and engaging ways, has a little play, "Captain Barry," which created a pleasing impression. Mr. O'Hara impersonates a gentleman highwayman with all the charm of a hero of the middle ages.

Al Fields and Dave Lewis, two of the most original and mirth-provoking comedians to be found on the American stage, have a string of the most humorous nonsense. Their act is called "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," and is a constant and continuous call for laughter of the side-splitting variety. These two clever comedians have the faculty, it seems, of controlling the laugh vaults of an audience at will, and in their present sketch make good at every sally thrust out. There is much relief to the physical sides of the audience after their leave.

Caesar Rivoli, an actor of remarkable ability, gives an impersonation of seven characters all by himself, and then imitates many orchestral leaders in face and mannerisms, making all the changes with bewildering speed.

The Ceballos, a troupe of pretty girls, and two men, give a startling exhibition of combined acrobatics and dancing under the title of an exhibition by "phantastic phantoms."

The De Faye Sisters have an act of fairy-like dancing, and banjo and mandolin playing. The sisters are pretty and graceful.

The boxing kangaroo and his human opponent, Rembrandt, a masterful cartoonist, the two Brittons in a negro dancing act, and the Bon Air trio, in an athletic and dancing offering, together with a fine display of motion pictures, round out a praiseworthy program.

Globe.

Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse," holds the boards at the Globe Theatre this week. Last night a large house saw the play performed by a strong company with Oliver Doud Byron in the leading role of the money king, John Burkett Ryder. Byron is strong in his presentation of the stern, cold-blooded man whose soul is wrapped in money. As a counterpart to the character portrayed by Byron is pretty Edith Barker, as "The Mouse." As Shirley Rossmore, the mild-mannered yet shrewd girl who finally causes the undoing of the money king, Miss Barker does some fine acting. George Curson-Casselberry, as Jefferson Ryder is very good. Clifford G. Leigh, Rose E. Tapley, William H. Barton, Dora L. Allen and Charles Sturges all received hearty applause.

"The Lion and the Mouse" has a strong plot and the lesson taught is not soon to be forgotten. The production here by Henry B. Harris affords Boston the first opportunity to see the play at popular prices. It is to continue at the Globe for two weeks.

Tremont.

Merrily goes "The Candy Shop."

This musical comedy began last night its second night at the Tremont Theatre with the house packed to the rail. Bostonians, young and old, must be like the "Wisest Men," judging by the way they relish a bit of nonsense now and then. They got it at the "Candy Shop," nonsense, fun, pretty girls, brisk dances and a general melange of music and comedy done to a turn. It is doubtful if Frank Lalor ever was funnier than in his role of Saul Wright, the tailor, who has 78,000 years of previous incarnations suddenly thrust upon him.

Rock and Fulton, headliners in vaudeville, are another hit in the production, with their versatile dancing and the "business" they work in with it. Lucy Weston and her songs, William J. McCarthy, Douglas Stevenson, Florence Morrison (the reincarnationist) and a chorus of parts contribute to the general sweetness of this candied play.

Park.

In one short week, "A Gentleman from Mississippi" at the Park Theatre has become known as one of the very best comedies that ever came into this city. It is funny. It is clean. It is essentially American. Its political theme makes it appeal to everyone. It is consistent.

Thomas A. Wise and Douglas Fairbanks, the co-stars, score time and again in their roles of Senator Langdon and "Bud" Haines, the newspaper man and Senator's secretary.

The women in the cast are six and all are good to look at, as well as thoroughly adequate in their parts. Take it all in all, it will be hard to find a production which pleases Boston audiences more than "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

Boston.

This is the final week of "The Gay Hussars" at the Boston Theatre. For three weeks this Hungarian operetta has been playing to deservedly good business. Anna Bussert, Harry Fairleigh, Bobby North, Florence Reid and Muriel Terry, backed by an unusually big company, give an artistic mixture of operatic music, singing, dancing and topical numbers.

Next Monday brings "The Three Twins," with Clifton Crawford, Bessie McCoy and other leads, with a chorus of fifty.

From top to bottom—Rose E. Tapley at the Globe; Marie Quinn at the American Music Hall; Blanche Dayne at Keith's.

Colonial.

The original engagement of Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady" has been extended at the Colonial. The play and the star will be here this week and next. Last night a big audience testified to the continuous popularity of the production, with its famous chorus girls' dressing scene and other illuminations of life on the stage. Many Bostonians saw the piece, of course, during its four months' run here two seasons ago. It is conceded that the present production is even better than the former one, though the cast is the same with two exceptions.

Hollis.

Only this week remains for Bostonians to see Hedwig Reicher, Frank Keenan and the others in the splendid cast offering "On the Eve" at the Hollis Street Theatre. The production of this drama of Russian revolutionary life is absorbing. The action of the play is vitally interesting. It never flags.

The cast is of more than usual interest on account of the presence of Miss Reicher, the German actress, new in Boston and equally new in an English-speaking role. Her interpretation of the role of Anna Kleanskaya is superb.

Beginning Monday William Collier comes to the Hollis in "The Patriot."

Majestic.

William Faversham, Julie Opp and the others in the fine cast of "The World and His Wife" at the Majestic Theatre are on their final week of the Boston engagement. This drama of the evils of gossip is wonderfully well played and is a lesson to curb the idle tongue.

Beginning next week the Majestic will offer "Havana," the musical success in which James T. Powers has played to over 200 performances at the New York Casino. With Mr. Powers come the original "'Hello People'" girls and all the others in the big cast.

Grand Opera House.

The "Queen of the Secret Seven," Owen Davis's most powerful melodrama, opened for a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House last night.

The play is exciting from start to finish, and the scenes are laid in New York.

The "Secret Seven," a gang of counterfeiters and blackmailers, headed by a woman, have defied the police for a number of years, their stronghold being an opium den owned by Moy Toy, a Chinese merchant.

The heroine, who is the innocent wife of one of the gang, has fallen into their clutches and to prevent her from exposing their schemes it is decided to kill her. She is put to torture and finally becomes insane as the result of a blow dealt by her husband. As she is about to be hurled onto the uplifted knives of the gang who have pronounced her death sentence, the hero arrives in an automobile at the head of a squad of police and the "Secret Seven" ceases to exist.

Pauline Fletcher, as Rose Merrick, the heroine, gives an excellent portrayal of a difficult part. Frank P. Haven as James Garnett and John P. Lockney as Roland Merrick were excellent. As Queen of the Secret Seven Pearl E. Abbott was roundly applauded. Cora Quinten made an able second. Between the scenes Miss Emily Curtis and George H. Sinclair entertained with songs.

Bowdoin Square.

The Bowdoin Square Theatre is presenting "Red River" this week, with Miss Edytha Ketchum as a newcomer to the stock company. "Red River" is a Southern drama of love and intrigue and of righteousness finally victorious. Miss Ketchum, playing the leading feminine role of Helen D'Abro, won instant favor through her personality and acting. Frederick Van Rensselaer played opposite her in the leading masculine part. Others in the company filled the remaining roles adequately.

Columbia.

"Miss New York, Jr.," the burlesque production which has made a big name for itself along the circuit, came into the Columbia yesterday for a week. Among the particular favorites in the cast is Lilla Brennan, who is a native of South Boston, and who is known as one of the best burlesque cards on the stage. Miss Brennan was given a rousing welcome by her friends at yesterday's dual performances.

Abe Reynolds, Dave Ferguson and other favorites are among the leaders in the fun-making.

To-morrow night there will be a wrestling match between Walter Willoughby and Joe Franz after the regular show. Friday the amateurs will appear.

Austin & Stone's.

The bill at Austin & Stone's Museum this week may certainly be described as "strong," with two noted strong men exhibiting. Sampson the Great holds on his back a platform on which nearly a score of men stand. His strength capacity is 3,257 pounds. The other "strength" champion is George Pinault, who gives a weight-lifting exhibition. One of Pinault's records is raising 1,000 pounds with the middle finger of each hand. Other features include Dionne and Zara, illusionists; Anderson, the sword swallower; Fortia Brothers, in hand balancing; the Cafallies, in living pictures; Warren and Mazey, tramp pianists; the Whalens, in juggling, and a new bill by the Manhattan Girls.

Gaiety.

The Knickerbocker Burlesquers, the week's attraction at the Gaiety, call their two skits, "Conglomerations of Nonsense." That name describes them, but it is bright and lively nonsense, with clever comedians and pretty girls to help out. The olio opens with Holden and Harron in "The Girl and the Messenger Boy." Bowen, Lina and Mull show fast acrobatic and bar work. The California Trio (Stewart, Raymond and Lewis) have a classy musical act.

Howard Athenaeum.

Howard Athenaeum audiences extended a roar of welcome yesterday to Pat White and his Gaiety Girls. The inimitable Pat handed out one joke and specialty after another. His Gaiety buds kept the burlesque pace moving fast. Among the feminine favorites were Anna Grant, Margie Catlin, Rhea Catto and Mae Connolly. The burlesque skits were rounded out with a swift olio. Lee Tung Foo, the Chinese baritone, made a hit. Other features were Krusada and Jab, Jack Usher and Lucile Whitecliffe, the Hennigs and Dot Collins.

New Palace.

Maude Scott and company in a comedy playlet head the week's bill at the New Palace. Broe and Maxim entertain with character comedy. Other features include Clarke and Templeton in singing and dancing; Vesta Gilbert in a soubrette turn; Carmen, the hoop-roller and juggler; Edna Leader in new songs and a series of new moving pictures of well-selected subjects.

Hub.

Marlowe, Myers and Murri in the breezy comedy skit, "A Simple Lesson in Shakespeare," make a prime vaudeville feature on the Hub Theatre's bill for the first part of this week. Jerome and Hunter give a novel comedy acrobatic act. Charles Mackie, character comedian, makes good. Master Daniel McQuarrie's songs are good and so are the new moving picture films. For the latter part of the week, beginning Thursday, the vaudeville part of the bill will change to Burke and Urline's feminine comedy singing team; Roach and Hart in absurdities and the Royal Musical Duo, just back from the West.

Scenic Temple

The Lilliputian Irish comedian, Major James B. Doyle, is a special attraction at the Scenic Temple this week. Ira Kessner, tenor soloist, has several new songs, illustrated with dissolving views. Ben F. Hilbert, "Rube" comedian, keeps the audience laughing. Miss Girard sings with expression and Edward Dillon lectures with his accustomed skill. Miss Leona Howe's Union Orchestra of ten young women is a delightful feature. New motion pictures add to the bill.

Pastime.

George Goslin, the mimic, scores heavily on this week's bill at the Pastime. Other hits are made by C. Greene, the character comedian; Clark and Temple in song and dance, Turner and Heath, impersonators; and Elinore Mack and Charles McNaughton in illustrated songs. New moving pictures add to the program.

Premier.

"The Curse of Cocaine," presented by the humanoscope at the Theatre Premier this week, is typical of the advanced art of motion pictures. It gives the actual conversation among the actors who appear upon the screen. In addition to this strong feature, there are the dramatic films: "The Winning Boast" and "On the Crest of the Waves," and the comedy films "All for a Nickel," "A Fish Story" and "Old Love Letters." New songs by Miss Grace Palmer, Miss Mae Reed and Gordon Richards add to the bill.

Peter the Great.

Peter, the chimpanzee, had fun with the members of the Boston Athletic Association yesterday in the gymnasium of the clubhouse. Through the courtesy of Mr. Keith and Mr. McArdle, a private exhibition was given, in which Peter displayed his talents. Afterward he held a reception in the gymnasium.

Professional Matinee.

There will be a professional matinee of "The Gay Hussars" at the Boston Theatre next Thursday afternoon at two o'clock to give members of the various theatrical companies in the city and vicinity a chance to see this Hungarian operetta.

Help! Who Can Make an 'Ould Irish' Stew?

WELL, if you could only see the smiles that are spreading over Lawrence O'Reilly's face these days. He's as tickled as a pink cat—whatever that may be—over the fine recipes for Irish Stew that are pouring into the AMERICAN office.

And do you know, Mr. O'Reilly is cultivating a fine Irish taste for poetry as well as for stew. Hardly a day passes that some one doesn't send in a poem for his delectation.

"I'm running in Cook's class when it comes to this poetry game," said Mr. O'Reilly to-day.

But as for picking out the prize winning recipes—well you should just see the bushel baskets full of answers to his Macedonian cry for "Help."

One woman made a hit with him by inviting him out to dinner to taste her cooking. "Now, that's what I call a good old Irish invite," he confided, and he laid the letter in a conspicuous place on top of a pile of the more choice recipes.

Here are some more:

"TOP O' THE MORNING TO YOU."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Good morning, Mr. O'Reilly,
Top of the morning to you;
I understand that you really Want an Irish stew.

'Tis me that can tell you the way!

Cut one pound beef and half pound pork into small pieces. Put in stew pan to brown with a piece of butter. Then add two carrots, an onion, a small yellow turnip and four or five potatoes, all cut in small squares. Add one quart of water and boil for an hour and a half.

MRS. THOMAS CURLEY.

Jamaica Plain.

HERE'S ANOTHER MR. O'R.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Take a good fresh shin of beef, good fresh parsnips, turnips, onions and potatoes, and celery if necessary. Flavor it with salt and pepper to taste. Cook slowly for four hours. Make a little thickening of flour dumplings. When done take the bone out and cut the meat in small pieces.

MRS. ILIFFE.

No. 151 Union street, S. Weymouth.

DON'T SLICE TOO THIN.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Fry four slices salt pork cut up fine and one onion cut fine until brown; don't let burn. Have six Irish potatoes sliced not too thin; cook in a quart of water; pour contents of frying pan with potatoes; when done, salt and pepper and thicken with a little flour dissolved in water or milk.

MRS. J. A. PRATT.

No. 38 June street, Fall River.

JUST ASK FOR "MULLIGAN."

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Possibly if the applicant for an Irish stew recipe would ask for "Mulligan" he would receive the desired article. The recipe as I undersand it is "Balance brought forward."

G. F.

U. S. Battleship Wabash.

IS THIS YOU LARRY?

Editor AMERICAN:

I wonder if you are
The Lawrence O'Reilly,
They speak of so highly;
Well upon my word O'Reilly
Your doing quite well.

For your stew, Larry, take the following: two pounds raw stew beef, cut small; one turnip, cut small; one onion, one cabbage, one carrot; cover with cold water; simmer three hours; season with salt and pepper and put four potatoes in, cut small; add dumplings and cook about half hour longer.

MRS. WILLIAM T. PROE.

Millis.

A FINE IRISH STEW.

Mr. Lawrence O'Reilly, how do you do!
I hear you are wanting a fine Irish Stew.
I send a recipe, without any blarney,
'Tis the real thing, imported from dear old Killarney.
Butter size of an egg puts a knob on this stew,
But if you are poor, the pork grease will do;
First catch your hog, then afterwards kill it,
Put half pound of pork in a fat bottom skillet;
Cut up in fine pieces, fry nice and brown,
Cut in two nice onions, round after round;
Put in six Irish potatoes, I think these will do,
Without these it would not be a real Irish Stew;
Put in three quarts of water, some pepper and salt,
Boil three-quarters hour, and bring to a halt;
Now have some fine dumplings, made just like a biscuit,
Not the kind made with eggs, hard like a triscuit;
Now cook twenty minutes, and pour in a pan,
This is good enough for O'Reilly or any other man.

MRS. F. B. O'COLEMAN.

2 Pleasant street, Fitchburg, Mass.

GIVE IT A TURNIP FLAVOR.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Cut up fresh beef in small pieces, put in a pot with enough cold water to cover it; when half done put in potatoes and two onions, salt and pepper; let boil until onions and potatoes are done; then a piece of butter, size of an egg; a tablespoon of flour dissolved in a half cup of milk; stir in last; let boil a little more and you have a very nice stew. For any one who likes vegetables a little turnip.

COME, GUESS! OUR JOHN'S AGE IS STILL IN THE AIR

"How old is little Johnny Jones?"

That interrogation is giving all the mathematical experts a chance to get busy. It is harder to figure out than the question of how rent money is to be set aside and all the store bills paid, too.

That kid has stirred up a fine dispute.

Here is the problem.

When teacher asked little Johnny Jones his age, he replied:

"When I was born my sister was one-quarter the age of mother. Sister is now one-third as old as father and I am one-quarter of mother's age. In four years I shall be one-quarter as old as father."

Now, how old IS little Johnny Jones? The BOSTON AMERICAN is too busy to work the problem out. Won't you help it by solving the problem and sending your name answer to Johnny Jones Contest, AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

Here are some of the answers:

JOHN IS JUST EIGHT.

Editor Johnny Jones Contest:

Johnny Jones is eight years old.

Please don't start any more contests like this. Every time one is in the paper somebody in the house brings it to me to solve.

When Johnny was born his sister was 7 years 73 days old, and his mother was 28 years 293 day sold. Now his sister is 16 years 292 days old and his father 50 years 146 days old. Johnny is now 9 years 219 days old.

Editor Johnny Jones Contest.

Johnny Jones is eight years old.

J. C. SWIFT.

West Barrington, R. I.

BELIEVES HE HAS IT AT SIX.

Editor Johnny Jones Contest:

I believe I have found Johnny Jones's age. Johnny Jones is six years old, and when he was born his sister was six years old, and she was one-quarter the age of mother, which makes mother twenty-four. Sister is now twelve years old and is one-third the age of father, which makes father thirty-six, and Johnny is one-fourth of mother's age—that is, one-fourth of twenty-four, which is six. In four years from now father will be forty and Johnny will be ten, which is one-fourth of father's age at that time.

Editor Johnny Jones Contest:

Here is my answer to your query, "How old is Little Johnny Jones?"

Johnny's mother's age when he was born was 28 4-5 years, and her age at present is 38 2-5 years. Johnny's sister's age when he was born was 7 1-5 years, and her present age is 16 4-5 years. Johnny's father's present age is 50 2-5 years. In four years Johnny will be 13 3-5 years old and "Little Johnny Jones" is at present 9 3-5 years old. Hoping I have helped the Boston American, sincerely,

FIRST QUALITY COAL FOUND IN RHODE ISLAND

PORTSMOUTH, R. I., Sept. 28.—Developments of great interest to the thousands of people interested in the Rhode Island Coal Company's properties here have occurred within the past forty-eight hours. Two of the four diamond drills working at distances remote from the old shafts have entered solid veins of anthracite coal of a quality distinctly superior to any coal previously known in New England. The No. 1 drill, situated 1,000 feet east of the old workings, has penetrated a vein 106 feet below the first vein. The No. 2 drill, situated about 4,000 feet east on the same line, struck a vein of anthracite 201 feet below the surface, the thickness of which has not yet been demonstrated.

Commenting on the recent discoveries, J. W. Dennis, superintendent of the mine, said: "The coal brought up in the cores of the diamond drills proves to be of a distinctly better quality than any we had ever supposed existed in the Narragansett Basin. Messrs. Powell and Nute, two Pennsylvania mining men of wide experience, told me that this coal was the best in quality that they had ever seen, not even excepting the finest grades of Pennsylvania anthracite.

"The coal veins thus revealed by the diamond drills prove beyond question our suppositions regarding the extent of the anthracite deposits in this field, and they bear out the predictions of Professor Shaler and other geologists relating to the immensity of the deposits. It is now certain that our veins will average not less than six feet in thickness over practically the entire area of the company's property. We are at present taking out coal for experimental and company purposes, the quality of which would astonish critics if they could see it."

WEDDING USHERS ACT AS PALLBEARERS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 28.—Instead of four friends and classmates of Charles A. Greene, Yale '99 and Yale Law '02, acting as his wedding ushers when he was to be married to Miss Mabel Howe of Fairport, N. Y., a Vassar graduate, on October 12, they now act today as his pallbearers at his funeral at Fairport.

Mr. Greene came here to visit Dr. A. Ross Diefendorf about ten days ago, and after a week's illness with appendicitis died at Dr. E. Austin Cheney's private sanitarium as the result of the operation a week earlier.

NORTH POLE HEALTH RESORT OF FUTURE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—That the Garden of Eden was situated at the North Pole and that the newly discovered Arctic regions will be a health resort of the future were two interesting assertions made by the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Seasholes in a sermon on "The Relation of the North Pole to God's Power of Redemption," in the Third Baptist Church, Germantown.

Sin, he said, caused the human family to be driven from this paradise, and the genius of man has now regained it. How it will be restored to its former ideal condition and made into a new paradise Dr. Seasholes did not explain.

SAVED $7,100 ON $8 A MONTH WAGE

YORK, Pa., Sept. 28.—The will of Miss Anna Smith, just probated, has astonished even the economical Pennsylvania folk. She was a servant for sixty of her seventy years, and never made more than $8 per month, but she leaves a house worth $1,500 and $5,600 in cash.

ARCHBISHOP BUYS ESTATE IN SOUTH END

The inclement weather apparently had no effect on the realty market and report of sales throughout the city and suburbs continues in good volume.

In the South End the property at No. 178 Harrison avenue, near Harvard street, comprising a three and one-half story brick house and 1,950 square feet of land, assessed on a total valuation of $6,700, has been purchased by the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston from James H. Watts. [illegible]

[illegible]

Jacob Mendelsohn et al., trustees, have sold to Jacob Pelsen et al., trustees, title passing through Harry M. Koppel, a tract of land, containing 130,050 square feet of land and taxed for $3,800, on Oakland street, near Farm street, Dorchester.

Frederick J. Rockwell has sold to Louis J. Keller a new frame house, not yet taxed, and 5,571 square feet of land on Oakley street, corner of Geneva avenue, Dorchester. The land is taxed for $1,2[illegible].

The Federal Trust Company has leased for a long term of years the large banking room on the corner of Devonshire and Water streets in the new William Lawrence building. The owners are to put in handsome fixtures for the trust company, which is to occupy the premises on the completion of the building, which will be about December 1. Colman & [illegible] street were the brokers for the lease and C. W. Whittier & Bro. represented the owners.

COURT ORDER HALTS $10,000 BOND DEAL

Judge Richardson of the Superior Court to-day granted a preliminary injunction restraining Sederquist, Barry & Co., Wiggin & Elwell and Charles F. West, trustee, from selling or disposing of ten bonds of the American Banking Company, valued at $10,000. The petition is by Joseph M. Mooney, who says he deposited the bonds as security with Sederquist, Barry & Co. in November last, and that on May 14 that concern transferred them without his knowledge or consent to Wiggin & Elwell, another stock brokerage firm, through a "fraudulent conspiracy."

WORCESTER MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENED

WORCESTER, Sept. 28.—The fifty-second Worcester music festival opens tonight in Mechanics Hall.

At the first public rehearsal the full chorus rehearsed Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah," which is to be rendered at the first concert to-night under the direction of Conductor Arthur Mees. An innovation on the part of the festival management for rehearsal was the admission of school children free, and many children availed themselves of the opportunity.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The discovery that E. H. Harriman left to his family about $150,000,000 is not surprising, but the thing that startled Wall Street is that fully half of this fortune is invested in Southern Pacific stock or enterprises depending entirely upon the Southern Pacific for success. With the Union Pacific owning half of the outstanding Southern Pacific stock, and with the Harriman estate owning half of the remainder, it does not require a prophet to figure out what is going to happen to Southern Pacific in the stock market. Neither the Union Pacific nor the Harriman stock is for sale. Southern Pacific is really the backbone of the whole Harriman system, and if the government should force segregation Southern Pacific has everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Adherents of the bull idea in stocks have deemed it prudent to intervene in the game of smashing the market. They fear that the Erie explosion might prove emulative. So Steel and Reading and Pennsylvania will be exploited, and these exploitations influence about every live property on the roster, exclusive of the Eries.

$ $ $

Erie is the only one of the railroads to cause the Street any worry. The selling is apparently for the account of a firm that joined the Stock Exchange only a few months ago. This firm is identified with Philadelphia interests, and it appears that some one got hurt in Lehigh Valley last week and had to let go some Erie. The slump in Erie attracts attention to the fact that the company is earning its fixed charges only by making sensational reductions in its operating expenses. Due credit must be given, though, to the fact that last year Erie was spending extra money on improvements.

$ $ $

One rumor is that Fred D. Underwood had been invited to resign from Erie to become president of the Union Pacific, but no one believes this rumor in view of the way Erie stock acts. Action of Union Pacific also tends to discredit the report. Erie's sinking spell is probably due to chronic causes. The small proportion of the public that carries the stock probably begins to realize that E. H. Harriman is not here to let the company have money should there be need for an[illegible]

Some brokers with a humorous turn of mind described the break in Amalgamated Copper as a raid. The astonishing thing about Amalgamated is that it sells so high. The Anaconda is a wonderful mine, but it cannot compete with the low grade producers that are coming forward. The insiders have distributed their Anaconda stock, and it would not be surprising if some of it had been distributed to the treasury of Amalgamated. The Amalgamated has been very kind at times to the crowd that imagined itself a copper trust. It refused to buy North Butte after ten years had proved it a valuable property, and the copper crowd was forced to assume a burden that proved their private judgment better than their official judgment. The vast surplus of unconsumed copper metal in the hands of producers and foundry men is one of the strong features of the industrial situation, for it insures a boom in electrical construction and great prosperity for the copper companies that can produce at a low price.

It is now undoubted that Atchison will go on a 6 per cent basis next month, and it is a growing supposition that the Pennsylvania payment will be raised to 7 per cent in November, though that may not meet the approval of the conservative element, particularly in view of the prospective stock issue. That the Pennsylvania can pay 7 per cent is conceded, however.

ST. LOUIS CENTENNIAL OPENS NEXT WEEK

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—With the concerted ringing of the bells of 444 churches here at sunrise next Sunday will begin the St. Louis centennial celebration, which will continue throughout the week. The events include a lecture on the North Pole by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the flying machine of Glenn H. Curtiss, the exhibition of the Henry Farman aeroplane and the M. A. Anthony wireless dirigible balloon.

POLO MATCH GOES OVER.

Norfolk and Myopia were to have played polo for the Norfolk cups at the Norfolk Country Club yesterday, but the field was in such a poor condition after the rain that the match was postponed until to-morrow, and will be played at 4 o'clock at the same place.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

STEEL COMMON NEARING 90

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Steel common continued to monopolize Wall Street today. Transactions in it were large, and during the first few minutes of trading it sold at the highest price in its history, 87⅞. The buying seemed to be of the best kind and was accompanied with report of enormous earnings to be made in 1910.

Stocks of independent steel companies were strong in sympathy. Republic Iron & Steel common were the leaders of this group and sold at a new high record of 48, a net gain of two points. Colorado Fuel was one-half of a point higher. Strength of the Independent Steel Company stocks was due to reports of the company's running at full capacity. The heavy selling of Erie shares yesterday disappeared today, and those issues were higher. They were also helped by a favorable report of the company's operations in New York State.

Pennsylvania was the strong feature of the railroad group and advanced to the new high record of 148⅜. Reading was another favorite which advanced 1½ points to 168¼. St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Wabash preferred also showed gains. Stockholders of the Bush Terminal Company will meet in sixty days to authorize an issue of $12,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds.

American shares were higher in London. Chicago subway was heavy on the New York Curb and declined to 9. Mining shares were not materially changed.

NEW FAST TRAIN ON NEW YORK RUN

The transportation committee of the New England Dry Goods Association reports that through its efforts the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has consented to put in service October 3 a new fast train between Boston and New York, leaving each city at 5:30 p. m. and arriving at 11 p. m. This train will have the best of equipment and will give an extra half hour for business. No extra fare will be charged on this train.

J. C. B. Smith, president of the association, and H. M. Meyer, general manager of the Henry Siegel Company, both say that the train will fill a want long felt by business men of both terminal cities, as frequently merchants have been obliged to remain over night in either city by reason of their inability to leave on the 5 o'clock train.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN is the Seventh Day Wonder of New England.

AUTUMN PARTY FOR CHURCH CHILDREN

The class of '04, St. Frances de Sales School, is to give an Autumn party in Knights of Columbus Hall, Charlestown, next Tuesday evening. The proceeds of the party are to go toward the class window which has been presented to the St. Frances de Sales church.

A SUNDAY AMERICAN want advt. is often the road to fortune.

BEAT WORLD'S RECORD.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 28.—In giving an exhibition pole vault at Westville's Old Home day celebration, A. C. Gilbert, the Yale athlete, who won the pole vault at the Olympic games, cleared the bar at 13 feet, 2 inches, some six inches better than the world's record. More than a dozen officials measured the distance accurately, but Gilbert had not selected his apparatus carefully and will not claim the record.

LOCAL STOCK LIST IS HEAVY

STATE STREET, Sept. 28.—It was a listless stock market this forenoon and heavy in tone. Steel common and New Haven & Hartford Railway stocks were exceptions, however. The absence of buying orders encouraged some bear selling in mining stocks, but it did not go very far.

Some demand for copper is noted. London sent a lower price for the metal at the opening. Amalgamated broke a full point to 81⅞ on wire offerings, while Steel sold up over a point to 88¼. Little of the latter stock is offering. New Haven stock benefited by the issuance of the annual report and stiffened 1¼ to 172½.

North Butte ran off fractionally to 61, but the stock is snapped up when offered down. Arizona Commercial also weakened to 47½ and Lake Copper was heavy at 35⅝@35½. Rotary Ring had a point advance to 12. This stock shows better support than of late.

Curb trading was light and prices were heavy all around. An exception was International Rotary, which was strong in sympathy with Rotary on the big exchange. National Exploration was fairly active, but less irregular. Rhode Island Coal sold at 12@11⅞.

MORGAN HELPS TO SAVE PALISADES

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Fourteen years of unremitting efforts to save the beautiful Palisades of the west bank of the Hudson River from destruction by blasting were crowned with success, when the completion of the purchase of the entire strip of Palisades from Fort Lee, N. J., to Piermont, N. Y., was announced. The land and cliff—fourteen miles long—will become the Palisades Interstate Park. J. P. Morgan gave $125,000 toward the purchase.

EX-POLICEMAN HELD FOR MEDICINE SALE

ATHOL, Sept. 28.—Ashley V. Bowker, a former Athol policeman, was arrested by Officer Phelps on a charge of selling medicine without a license.

Dr. Ray made the complaint which caused Bowker's arrest. Bowker refused to tell what his medicine was made of, although he admitted he had made it himself.

GIRL FORGER OF 13 AMAZES POLICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—Ruth Crowe, thirteen, has confessed to a series of forgeries by which she obtained several hundred dollars. Her work was so clever and her criminal shrewdness so exceptional, both in forging names and raising amounts in checks, that the police are amazed.

GIRLS ELECT OFFICERS.

Boston University sophomore semi-annual election of officers resulted in the choice of Florence McArdle of Dorchester Centre as president, Harold B. Shepard of Concord Junction as vice president, and Helen McNeil of Boston as secretary. The treasurer will be chosen next week.

NO SHOES; WANTS DIVORCE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—That her husband had purchased her only one pair of shoes in the four years of their married life was one of the reasons given by Mrs. Margaret Dando for desiring a divorce from William Dando.

Yes, the World Moves On

These "Moving Pictures in History" Prove It

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

Here are some of our "Moving Pictures in History." They are to be looked at thoughtfully.

These pictures tell the story of the moving of freight on this earth—a story of progress.

First is the old way.

The Old Way of Moving Freight

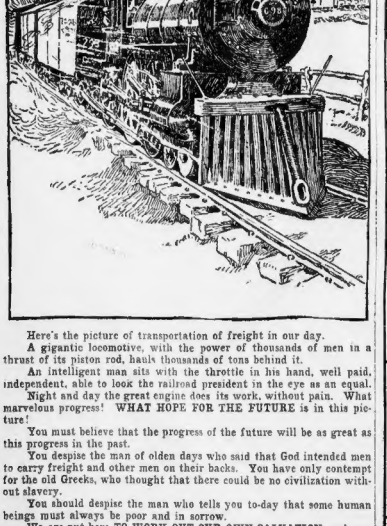

A shackled slave carries a horrible load. A soldier, with spear and whip, himself the slave of a bigger man, drives the poor, freight-carrying creature until he drops.

In that way the freight of the world was carried once. Men carried other men on their backs. Men sitting in the old galleys, chained to their seats, rowed the warships and sank, chained, when the fighting galley went down.

And all men but the farseeing then believed THAT THINGS COULD NEVER BE ANY BETTER; they denounced the man who pitied the freight-carrying slave.

Freight Carrying To-day

Here's the picture of transportation of freight in our day.

A gigantic locomotive, with the power of thousands of men in a thrust of its piston rod, hauls thousands of tons behind it.

An intelligent man sits with the throttle in his hand, well paid, independent, able to look the railroad president in the eye as an equal.

Night and day the great engine does its work, without pain. What marvelous progress! WHAT HOPE FOR THE FUTURE is in this picture!

You must believe that the progress of the future will be as great as this progress in the past.

You despise the man of olden days who said that God intended men to carry freight and other men on their backs. You have only contempt for the old Greeks, who thought that there could be no civilization without slavery.

You should despise the man who tells you to-day that some human beings must always be poor and in sorrow.

We are put here TO WORK OUT OUR OWN SALVATION, and rapidly we are doing that.

We have taken off the shackles of the slave, and the great engine carries the load that he carried.

We have torn down the torture chambers, and put up public schools.

Yet what man HAS done is as nothing. His great work and destiny are in the future. BELIEVE THAT.

Mr. Dubb and Mr. Dough

THEIR ADVENTURES—By F. OPPER

COPYRIGHT, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

1—The situation of Dough and Dubb was desperate! On a desert island, far from home! They decided to build a house! Dough decided Dubb should build it!

2—After the home was built they each took one side of it. Dough took the inside. Wasn't that a fine arrangement for Mr. Dough?

3—It rained a good deal! Also hailed! But Dough was always cheerful and tried to keep up Dubb's spirits by giving him much sage advice!

4—Although the island abounded in hungry and ferocious animals, Dough remained fearless and calm! But they chased Dubb all night! On the level, Isn't Dubb the Hard Luck Kid?

Oh, Mr. Jack!

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE —ON— LOVE AND LAW

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

ONCE when bread and honey were up for discussion a little girl from the city asked her country cousin this question, "Does your papa keep a bee?"

And that is all there is of the story.

But let us here state a great, undisputed fact: A bee alone never makes honey.

In fact, a bee when alone loses heart absolutely; its intelligence vanishes; it even forgets how to sting. And separated a distance of three to five miles from its hive it will droop and die.

Bees are successful only as they work with other bees.

A man alone will accomplish nothing. All of his thoughts and acts have a direct relationship with others.

Men succeed only as they work together.

Without companionship ambition drops; courage flags; reason totters; ambition vanishes, and the man dies.

Nature puts a quick limit on the horrors of solitary confinement—she unhinges the reason of the prisoner, and he addresses comrades who have no existence save in his fevered imagination.

The prisoner who does useful work is in direct communication with other people—he works for others, and the thought that he is doing something for somebody sustains him.

Always Hopes of Usefulness

The "lifer" is always sustained by the hope of pardon—as long as he lives he is a part of the whole, and should it ever come to him that his case is a hopeless one and he is alone, his usefulness is gone.

Soldiers who are cowards by themselves often fight bravely when placed on the firing line with others.

We succeed only as we bind ourselves with others. Each man is a molecule that is needed to make up the all.

Successful employers of labor recognize this full well, for they always allow their helpers to work in gangs where possible.

A division superintendent in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad tells me that, in painting stable, houses, he has found that four men working together will do at least five times as much as one man working alone, and they will also do their work better.

Teachers know the principle, and thus they teach in classes. The private tutor is never quite a success unless his scholar is defective. Children will teach each other as much as they are taught by their teachers. Healthy people like to work, play, eat, learn and live together.

The kindergarten spirit—and no finer thing exists—is only possible through association.

A child absolutely alone would never evolve; a child deprived of the companionship of its own becomes abnormal.

A great man is one who carries the kindergarten spirit right through life, and any one who carries the kindergarten spirit through life is great.

The sheep herder, alone on the mountains, often is possessed by illusions and hallucinations, and yet he has his dog, his horse, his flock, and these to a degree supply comradeship; but they are not enough. He needs humans.

Love is the fulfilling of life's law.

First Factor in Evolution

The first factor in the evolution of humanity is mutual aid. A family living in the country depending upon agriculture for their support is a little community. Here is the father, mother, half a dozen children and grandparents. If they lived purely individual life each adult would get up in the morning would start out for himself and prepare his own breakfast.

But not so. One starts a fire, another brings in fuel, another goes for a bucket of water, still others go out and look after the stock. When the meal is ready they partake of it.

After breakfast, each one goes to his task and does the thing he can do best. The girls help their mother put the house in order; they sew, wash, work in the garden, den of among the flowers and keep the home presentable and sanitary. The boys and boys will care for stock, go out and cut down trees for lumber or fuel. Those who are too small to work, but who can ride horseback, goes to town on errands, to the mill. The old man rocks the baby and churns. The grandmother cooks, mends and knits. Each slips naturally into the place where he belongs, taking up the task he can do best, and working for the good of all.

The one who can bestow most benefits receives most honors.

In the case of the old, they are honored for what they have done, and the young are honored and loved for the hope of what they will become. At harvest time the women and children will go out into the orchards and fields and work at the minor task of garnering the crop. The family, possessed of even moderate mental attainments, that works with a genuine zest and simple common sense, that works together, will grow wealthy as the years pass by the barns will grow greater; the dwelling will be enlarged and beautified outside and by trees will be planted and bring forth fruit, or supply grateful shade. The place will take on an attitude of good cheer, tokening happiness and reasonable content.

It is not necessary to see the person to know what sort of a person he is.

You know the farmer by the appearance of his farm—his character is written all over it. His cattle, horses, hogs and sheep exhibit him. A farmer is known by his team, not by the company he keeps. As a boy I could look at the horses standing in front of a country store and make shrewd guesses as to the moral, mental and financial status of the owners, and I was not so awful smart either. The horse is the dog of a drunkard give him away.

So this is the point: The family whose members work together succeeds. And the success of this family is in exact ratio to the love that cements them into a whole. Of course, the more intellect you can put with this mutual love, the better; but intellect alone is too cold to fuse the elements. Indifference of inanimate things and the command success.

"It is generally conceded that the BOSTON AMERICAN has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago."—Advertisers' Magazine.

Fact and Fancy

Written in Collaboration by a Poet and a Scientist

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

LO! The sun sinks in the ocean, tender twilight falls and then—
(That's an idiotic notion. Suns don't start again.)

Stars look down as if in pity on the ruined, moss-grown wall,
Of the old deserted city. (Rubbish! Stars can't see at all!)

Hear the softeyed heifer calling to the moon above the lake!
(Nonsense! The fool beast is bawling just to keep some one awake.)

While the brooklet sings forever, down among the rushes hid.
(Sings! Gee, whiz, but it is clever! What's the ditty? Oh! you Kid!)

See the maiden's soul uplifted, as she gazes o'er the plain!
(How are maiden's spirits shifted—with a derrick or a crane?)

Darkness steals while I am musing! I can feel the velvet touch.
(Be specific in accusing. If it stole, then state how much.)

Round fair Venus, shining clearly, two white stars admiring hover.
(Round her nothing! They are nearly fifteen million miles above her.)

And the sleeping tide comes creeping as the gentle zephyr dies.
(It is good to know it's sleeping! When it wakens, will it rise?)

Soon the night will spread its pinions, and embark in eager flight
To the dazzling day's dominions. (Aviate, like Orville Wright!)

After which it may be stated, although needless it may be,
That the same be demonstrated: Fact and Fancy don't agree.

WAS HE HIRED

Gent (engaging new chauffeur)—And have you any references from your last employer?

Applicant for situation—No; but I can get some in about a month.

Gent—Why the delay?

Applicant—He's in the hospital.

INFERRED

Visitor—And do you find this pen-and-ink sketching a profitable pursuit?

The Comic Artist—Oh, well, it just keeps the pot boiling.

Visitor—So! Do you light the fire with them, then?
